PREFACE

This is an humble attempt to study the similes in Manusmṛti. First two chapters deal respectively with the field of observation of Manu and the peculiarities of construction that have appeared in expressing the similes. Chapter three gives the translation of relevant passages from the text of Manusmṛti with the Upamānas arranged according to the Sanskrit Alphabetical order. Herein I have clearly stated the Upameya, Upamāna, Sādhāraṇa Dharma and Upamāvācaka in each simile along with full notes on the peculiarities of construction found in each. Chapter 4 brings together other Alaṅkāras divided into two parts viz. (A) Alaṅkāras based on Aupamya and (B) Alaṅkāras independent of Aupamya. Although these do not form an important part of my study they have been included with a view to complete the information, about figures of speech in Manusmṛti.

In the translation of the passages from Manusmrti, I have followed Buhler. I have used the edition of Manusmrti—1929—with the commentary of Kullüka brought out by Pandurang Javji, Proprietor, Nirnaya Sagar Press, Bombay.

I have no adequate words to thank my revered Guru Prof. H. D. Velankar under whose guidance and at whose inspiration, I have been able to complete this work. But for his words of encouragement, I would never have been able to apply myself to this work. Sincere thanks are also due to Prof G. V. Devasthali, M.A., Ph.D.—who has kindly written a Foreword to this work and to M. M. Dr. V. V. Mirashi, M.A, Ph.D., D.Lit., who has spared his valuable time for writing a few words of encouragement, which appear at the end of this book.

I would, of course, be failing in my duty if I forget to thank Dr. J. C. Jain, M.A., Ph.D., who has been taking active interest in this work of mine and has been kind enough to introduce more to the Publishers of this book—Messrs. Motilal Banarsidass of Delhi—who have brought out this work in good time. My thanks are also due to them.

The Author acknowledges his indebtedness to the University of Bombay for the grant-in-aid received by him from the University towards the cost of publication of this work.

FOREWORD

It gives me great pleasure to write a foreword to this valuable work of my gurubandhu Prof. Dr. M. D. Paradkar. The very fact that this work has been done under the guidance of Professor H. D. VELANKAR is, in my opinion, guarantee enough of its high standard and as such should require no foreword at all. But when my friend Dr. Paradkar expressed his desire that his work should have one and further that I should write it, I found it difficult to say 'no.' In a way I took it for a privilege and gladly undertook the task.

The present work forms about half of Dr. Paradkar's Thesis—a portion of the other half dealing with Sankarācārya's work on similar lines has appeared in the Bombay University Journal, VOL.
XXVII, Part I, September 1956. Even a cursory perusal of the work is enough to give the reader an idea of the scheme followed by the author.

Simile, as is well-known and self-evident, has played a very significant part in human language in general and belles lettres in particular. Nor is it less important in philosophical and such other works. It not only softens the acidity and toughness of the subject matter by adding some enlivening aspect to it, but more often than not serves to make it more appealing to the reader and better impressed and ingrained into his head. A study of the similes used by an author is again sure to give us a probe into his head and heart. For similes as a general rule, spring out of the thought material that is very deeply set in one's experience and are at the same time calculated to call out similar experience in the reader.

Similes may be studied from the point of view of their structure also, taking into account each of the four parts thereof, or the omission of any one or more of them, or an admixture or confusion of divergent constructions, or any deviation—stylistic or structural—from the norm. A close observation of all such peculiarities in works belonging to some special field—say religion and philosophy—in particular is bound to be interesting no less than instructive. Hence it is that scholars of repute—both Indian as well as foreign—have directed their energies to a detailed study of, similes and Metaphors in the Rgveda', and 'Similes in the Various Family Mandalas of the Rgveda'. Similes in the Great Epic, the Mahā-Bhārata, 'Similes in Sanskrit Dramatic Literature' and 'Similes of Kālidāsa' among others have also been studied on similar lines. Dr. Paradkar's Thesis belongs to this category and certainly deserves a place of honour therein. It deals in full details and exhaustively not only with the similes occuring in the Manu-smṛti, but also some other figures either based on Simile or independent of it——these latter, of course, forming the main subject of study.

In one section Dr. Paradkar has put together all the Similes (in translation) with his own observations on them. As a result of a close study of these, he has arrived at some conclusions regarding (i) the Field of the authors' observations, and (ii) the Peculiarities of Construction, which have been set forth by him in two different sections. Alankāras based on aupamya and Alankāras independent of it have been similarly studied (Of course, cursorily) in two parts in the section at the end. The number of similes discussed in this work is 228 while the other figures discussed are Atifayokti, Apahauti, Dipaka, Distânta, Nidasśanā, Rūpaka, Kānyalinga and Sāra.

Very wide, indeed, is the field of the author's observation as revealed by the similes in the Manu-smrti. But even more interesting than this are the findings of Dr. Paradkar regarding the stylistic and structural peculiarities in that work. Thus though as a general rule the Upamāna and the Upamsya are expected to agree in gender, number and case, there are cases where such an agreement is found lacking; and with his careful study of all such cases, Dr. Paradkar has shown (i) that divergence in gender between the Upamāna and the Upameya is often the result of an added Metaphor (i.e. the Upameya being couched in an expression involving a Rūpaka); (ii) that the use of one Upamāna for more *Upameya*s than once often results in disagreement in gender as well as number; and (iii) that case disagreement is due either to grammatical considerations, or to anakoluthic construction or to exigencies of metre.

As regard Sādhāraņa dharma it is observed that though it is generally stated only once, it may be expressed more than once (i) when the Simile is expressed in two independent sentences, or (ii) when the construction of the Upamāna-vākya differs from that of the Upamāya-vākya or (iii) when the Sādhāraṇa dharma is not really Sādhāraṇa. In cases of the first variety, the common property is expressed by means of exact synonyms, or in some similar or slightly varying expressions, or positively as well as negatively; in the second, the statements of the common property further differ in case, tense, mood etc.; while in the third a restatement of the common property becomes an absolute necessity to make the point of the simile quite clear.

Similar interest attaches to Dr. Paradkar's findings regarding the statement of the upameya and the upamāna, viz., when they are stated in restricted expressions, and under what circumstances they are elliptic. Cases of similes with one or more of their component parts dropped as also similes expressed in a totally irregular way have also been subjected to a similar scrutiny in this work; and the reader may do well to acquaint himself with the author's findings in connection with all these aspects by going through the work itself.

It may thus be easily seen that Dr. Paradkar has in these pages set a good example to young scholars stepping into the field of research which they could do well to emulate. Varied indeed is the field for Oriental Research and the larger the number of young enthusiastic scholars attracted to it the better. The present work of Dr. Paradkar will, I hope, prove a mile stone for other fellow workers in the field and will, therefore, have a hearty welcome from all quarters as it very well deserves.

FIELD OF OBSERVATION

- 1. Similes are used for introducing simplicity and clarity of expression. Every author chooses his Upamānas from his experience and hence a study of the Upamānas goes a long way in determining the powers of observation of the author as they (i.e. the Upamānas) reveal things that have caught his fancy. From this point of view it is interesting to take a note of the Upamānas used by the author of Manusmrti
- 2. Broadly speaking the Upamäs can be divided into five categories. Some Upamäs are culled from the God-world, others are to be traced to the world of Sacrifice, which was once the central theme of ancient Indian thought. Majority of the Upamäs, however, as is only expected, belong to this mortal world of ours. Hence Upamäs from the Nature world, Animalworld and Human-world have a lion's share.
- 3. In the God-world, Agns (as a deity) is brought in as an Upamāna for a king who is advised to be full of luster and brudiancy like the former (2)1. Indea sending showers on earth during four months becomes the Upamana for a king who is advised to shower gifts on his kingdom at proper times (36). Dwa or god once becomes the standard of comparison for the householder who does not neglect the three fires, in point of the common property of enjoying bliss in the heavenly world (108) and secondly for a husband, even though he be destitute of character, devoid of virtues and a seeker of illicit pleasures, in respect of the common property i.e. receiving worship in the case of a faithful wife (109). Yama is the Upamāna for a king in point of impartial behaviour free from likes and dislikes and characterised by self-control (172). Again Yama exercising equal control over friends and foes becomes the standard of comparison for a king who also is expected to regulate his subjects impartially

r Figures in brackets indicate the serial numbers of the similes in chapter 3.

(173). Märute or Wind (as a deity), entering all created beings (in the shape of vital airs) and moving everywhere becomes the standard of comparison for a king who is expected to enter the hearts of his subjects through his spies (185). Similarly Vāju on which depend the lives of all creatures (jantavaļi) has rightly become the Upamāna for the householder on which depend all the members of other diramas (orders of life) for their existence (94). Varuņa becomes the Upamāna for a king in respect of binding down the sinners; the former does it with his noose, the latter with his sceptre (180).

4. Similes from the Sacrificial world are few and far between. By the time Manusmiti was composed, the sacrifice had lost its importance which it had during the days of Samhita and the Brahmana period, particularly due to the rise of Upanisadic thought and of the two antagonistic namely Jamism and Buddhism. Yet sacrificial similes are not totally absent. Thus a Brahmana, learned or not learned, is compared to sacrificial fire sanctified or not sanctified in point of being a great deity all the same (1) Kāma which grows all the more, instead of being extinguished by its enjoyment is rightly compared to sacrificial fire (krypavariman) which also blazes merrily and is never extinguished by clarified butter and other offerings i.e. havis (3) Aghamarşana sükta is compared to the Asvamedha sacrifice in point of being efficacious in removing all sins (20). Non-metallic and unbroken vessels (pātras) are likened to Camasa-cups in sacrifice as both are cleaned with water (84). The study of the three vedas has become the Upamana for Dharmaiastra i.e. its study in point of being the cause of obtaining the heavenly world (102).

5. Looking at the Animal-world, it can be safely said that the author is a very careful observer of the habits of animals, birds and insects. Here the com often occurs as an Upamana.

6. Thus the cow belonging to others occurs as an Upamāna for others' wives in respect of the mability of the begetter in obtaining the progeny (73). The cow is also chosen as an Upamāna for unrighteousness (adharma) in point of being fruitful to a person not at once but after an amount of time. If the word gauh is here understood as a milch cow or a full-grown buil, as does Kullūka, the Upamā would be based on Valdharmya (74). A blind cow is chosen as the Upamāna for Sambhojani-dakṣiṇā as both remain confined to the place where they exist without making progress (75), and a cow in mire rightly becomes the standard of comparison for the kingdom of a monarch where a Sūdra explains the law, in respect of sinking or perishing (76). Once an ignorant person accepting even a small gift is said to sink (perish) like a cow in the deep mire (78). A cow in case of another cow is compared in point of fruitlessness of acts for spiritual advantage performed by a brahmin who has not studied the Vedas (77).

7. She-goats (9), swes (18), mares (21), female camels (46) and buffallo-cows (162) belonging to others occur as Upamanas for others' wives in respect of the mability of the begetter in obtaining the progeny. A serpent with its slough occurs as the Upamana twice. Once the twice-born respecting the three Vyahrtis a thousand times and hence being free from sin (43) and secondly the man who confesses his guilt and hence is free from demerit (24) is compared to a serpent freed from its slough. occurs as the secondary Upamana for aksitus for which see under seed (bija) in Sec. 20 no. 140 below. As a tortoise hides its limbs, so is a king advised to secure the members of his government from treachery (56). Vaidharmyena Upamā occurs when a person who does not eat meat by disregarding rules is compared with a pulsica who eats it (133). The ents gradually raising an anthill supply a very appropriate Upamana for a person slowly accumulating spiritual merit (134). The lives of living creatures are brought in comparison with the vital airs of kings and tormenting the body which puts an end to the lives of the former serves as the Upamāna for oppressing the kingdom which also destroys the vital airs i.e. lives of the latter (140). A king is said to be on par with a heren in point of planning the undertakings (144), with a welf in respect of snatching the prey (193) with a have in point of doubling in retreat (202) and with a ken in respect. of showing valour (216).

8. The Brahmana who with a downcast look and cruel disposition, is dishonest, falsely gentle and intent upon attaining his own ends is compared to a heron in point of behaviour (145 and 145A) Similarly, the Brahmana who is a hypoente, a deceiver, a detractor of ments, is ever covetous, intent on doing injury, and is one who displays the flag of virtue is likened to a cat in respect of behaviour (148). If the king were not to inflict punishment on those who deserve it, the weaker ones would be roasted by the strong like fish on spike or like weaker fish devoured by the strong fish in water (158) Fish with bones occur as the subsidiary Upamana with the blind man for which see Sec. 13 no. 11 below. A trussed up deer (carmamaya mrga) (167) and the wooden elephant (kāsihamaya hastin) (228) aptly become the standards of comparison for a brahmin who does not study, in respect of 'the want of substantiality' The deay occurs as a subsidiary Upamana for duties (of a king) for which see Sec. 13 no. 22 below. As enemies do not hurt animais (mrga) sheltered by caves or fortresses, so the foes do not harm the king who has taken refuge in his fort (169) king who is advised to (gradually) accept taxes little by little 1 e. very moderately, from his kingdom is properly compared once with a calf (178), secondly with a leach (189) and thirdly with a bee (209) accepting their food bit by bit. The bird (šakunt) leaving the tree (orkya) occurs as an Upamana for an ascetic leaving his body without any attachment (197). The swan (225) and the elephant (vāraņa 227) are chosen as the appropriate Upamānas for a woman in respect of a graceful gait.

- 9. Casting a glance at the similes in the Human World, we find that here also the observation of the poet is very keen and covers a wide field. Here Guru, a thirf and a Sudra are often introduced for comparison.
- ro. Thus the Guru becomes the Upamāna for the teacher's teacher (62), for superiors, sons of the teacher that are born of wives of equal caste and venerable relatives of the teacher (63) as well as for a learned and virtuous son of the teacher, the wives of the teacher and a blood relative (sapinda) of the teacher (66) in respect of being treated with great reverence. Being highly respect-worthy forms the common property between Guru, the Upamāna and the teacher's son imparting instruction, the Upameya (64). Respectability is mentioned as the common property between the Upamāna Guru and the Upameya namely the teacher's wives belonging to the same class (65). Guru is the Upamāna used for a more powerful king who is recommended to be served by a weak king whose disloyal subjects as well as his foe's army are expected to be kept under check by him (67). The mijoga being over, the person appointed for it in case of the widow has to treat her like a daughter-in-law (223) and the widow has to treat him like the father-in-law i.e. guru (68).

driver who kills a man under his chanot, in respect of sin and punishment (87) and for a person who sells another man's articles without his consent, in point of the infliction of punishment (88). Similarly a thief (coura) is chosen as the Upamāna for the person who does not return a deposit as well as he who demands what he never deposited (89), for persons appointed to guard provinces and vassals who remain neutral in attacks by robbers and the like (90) as well as for those individuals who receive stolen goods and those who offer fire, food, arms and shelter to threves (91), in respect of punishment. A Brāhmaṇa seeking to obtain wealth by teaching or sacrificing for a thief is deservedly compared to a thief (stata) himself, as both become sharers of sin (92).

know the form of returning a salutation, in point of being unfit for being saluted by a learned man (203). All brahmins who are cattle-breeders, traders, mechanics, actors, singers, menial servants and usurers are compared with a Sūdra in point of degradation or low status (204). In one case, the Vaisya and Kṣatnya or Pārthiva who commit adultery with a Brāhmaṇa woman are compared with a Sūdra in respect of severe punishment in the form of being burnt in a fire made of dry grass (205). Sūdra is also offered as the Upamāna for that Brāhmaṇa who neither worships in the morning nor in the evening, in respect of being excluded from all duties and sacred rights of a twice-born one i.e. dunga (206). On one occasion, a Sūdra begetting on a Brāh-mana female a person excluded from the Aryan fold (bāhya), is offered as the Upamāna for the Bāhya himself getting a Bāhyatara person from a female belonging to the four castes (154).

13. Gifts given to an ignorant man (10) and a amunch in case of women (210) are compared in point of fruitlessness of acts for spiritual advantage performed by an ignorant brahmin who has not studied the Vedas. A blind man eating fish unth bones is used as an Upamāna for a har who speaks falsehoods, in point of evil consequences(11, Arundhati occurs as a standard of comparison for a woman who remains faithful to her husband as both are not required to leave the Bhartploka at any stage (17). A hunter fo. owing the track of the wounded deer by the drops of its blood is appropriately used as an Upamana for a king who follows his duties with the help of inferences (22). One's oum self becomes the Upamana for a son (26) and the latter (son) becomes the standard of comparison for a daughter (135) in respect of inheritance to wealth. Similarly a legitimate (aurasa) son rightly becomes the standard of comparison for a son begotten on an appointed female in respect of inheritance to property (53). An Andrya having appearance of an Aryan is brought in comparison with a person who does not belong to any caste and is born of impure origin, as both can be known by their actions (34) A weeder plucking up weeds and preserving the corn is appropriately brought in as an Upamana for a king who is expected to destroy his opponents and protect his kingdom (54) The unfe of the teacher becomes the standard of comparison for the sister of the mother, the maternal aunt, the mother-in-law and the sister of the father, in respect of receiving honour (70) as well as in point of respectability (72) oulation of Guru's bed (gwutalpa) is chosen as an Upamana for conjugal relation with sisters by the same mother, with maidens and females belonging to lowest caste as well as with wives of a friend or a son, in respect of paparahatra (71); a wise man who should not explain unless he is asked and should not answer if asked unproperly, even though he knows, is compared with an that in point of behaviour (93). Slave-girls (ddsi) are brought in comparison with others' wives as in case of both the begetter does not obtain the offspring (106). The twice-born men (dvijāti) who are constantly sanctified by sacrifies become the Upamāna for kings constantly sanctified or purified by checking or controlling the wicked and favouring or protecting the good (111). Like a servant (bhrtaka) waiting for his wages (nirdesa) an ascetic, neither desirous of living nor of dying, should wait for his appointed time (123)

14. The eldest brother is compared with the father and the younger (lit. remaining) brothers are advised to live under hom (like sons) (128). A king should behave towards his subjects like a father (129) The eldest brother behaving like the eldest, is to be respected or honoured like the father (130) or the mother (164) As a father protects his own son, so 15 a king asked to protect and provide for a Śrotriya or learned Brahmana, after having ascertained the ability of the latter (131). Like a father protecting his sons, the eldest brother is asked to protect or support his younger brothers (129) and the latter are also advised to behave towards him like soms (136) The eldest brother who, however, does not behave like the eldest is to be treated ake an ordinary relative (146). The son of a son i.e. grandson is brought in as an Upamana for the son of a daughter, as both save a person in the next world (139). The mather is given as the Upamana for the sister of one's father and of one's mother as well as of one's elder sister, in respect of honour to be done to them (16g).

15. A dead person (preta) is offered as the Upamāna for an outcaste (or a patita) in respect of the breaking of a pitcher filled with water, indicating his total severence from all relations (142). A virtuous wife remaining faithful to the husband after the death is said to obtain the heavenly world even without a son like the Ancient Celibates (152). A person who foolishly causes religious duties to be performed by wives of lower caste, even when his wife of the same caste is alive is compared with a brāhmaṇacaṇḍāla i.e. a caṇḍāla begotten on a brāhmaṇa woman by a Śūdra in point of being equally despicable (155). A chariotest who tries to control his horses serves as a befitting Upamāna for a person who is asked to restrain his senses that run not among sensual objects (171) A mora i.e. one of the trähmana guests becomes the Upamāna for one's own father in respect of being fed at the funeral sacrifice (190) Variyas are brought in comparison with Sūdras as the same mode of purification is common to both (198). In one case, men who have committed crimes and have been duly punished are said to go to heaven like meritarious persons (218).

- * 16. In the Nature-World, as is quite expected in a work like Manusmiti which professes to teach rules of conduct and the like, Upamānas or standards of comparison like fire, the sun and water should figure prominently
- A Brahmana is compared to fire (pralana) in point of being free from all taints or being naturally pure (according to Buhler) (4). The same common property with a different emphasis is used when Brahmanas not being impure even after being engaged in evil pursuits are compared to fire (pāvaka) which is also not soiled though found in creamation grounds (5). Fire (value) burning the fuel with its lustre becomes the standard of comparison for a knower of Vedas destroying all sin by (the fire of) his knowledge (6). Similarly fire burning trees (druma) even though wet, becomes a befitting Upamāna for a Vedajāa burning all taint of his soul arising out of evil deeds (7). An ignorant vipra is compared with traāgni i.e. fire made of grass in point of dying out soon i.e. becoming useless (97).
- 18. The sun (āditya) once becomes the Upamāna for a king in point of dazzling the eyes and the mind (by this lustre) (27) and secondly (this time sahanāthiu) for the Universal Egg in respect of brilliancy (prabhā) (29). The sun (āditya) sucking up water (toya) with its rays becomes a standard of comparison for a king who is advised to elicit taxes from his kingdom (28)
- 19. Water has become the standard of comparison several times. It has already occurred with the sun and its raju in Sec. 18 above. In point of being free from taints or being pure by nature (according to Buhler) it i.e. water (ambs) becomes the Upamana for Brahmanas (40). Water (udaka) trickling out of the fost of a skin serves as an appropriate Upamana for the Prajñā or intelligence of a person which also slips away due to the misbehaviour of even one of his senses (39). The fame of a king who behaves in the right manner spreading in the world rightly compared to a drop of oil spreading in water (arithahs) (99) and that very fame diminishing in the world on account of his improper behaviour is likened to a drop of ghee going down in water (arithahs) (81). Once it occurs along with nara where a man digging the ground with a spade and obtaining water (vāit) is brought in as an Upamāna for an obedient Brahmacārin obtaining Vidyā from his teacher by service (120).

20. Aparapakja and Pūrvapakja occur as the Upamāna for the Aparahana and Purvahana as in both the former excels the latter and hence is preferable to it for a Śrāddha (12) Amria and vise are brought in comparison with insult (13) and honour (191) respectively, as a Brahmana is expected to long for the former and turn away from the latter. A stone-boat (almaplava) in water (ambhasi) once occurs as an Upamana for a Brahmana who neither performs austerities, nor studies Vedas and yet longs for a gift, as both ultimately sink or perish (19) Secondly the stone-boat (aupala-plane) which drowns a man trying to cross with its help, becomes the appropriate Upamana for the ignorant receiver of a gift who is responsible for the spiritual fall of an ignorant giver (143). The sky (ākāja) which is not tainted by mud serves as an Upamana for a person who is not tainted by na even if he, in life's peril, accepts food from any person whatsoever (25) A Brahmana accepting out of greed a gift, great or small, is likened to an unbaked clay-nessel (amapatra) in water, as both quickly perish (33). The arrow (1511) and the wound serve as a double Upamana for bija and paraparigraha i.e. another's wife where the bijakuta of a man upon another's wife after the bijaksepa of the legitimate husband is declared to be as useless as the throwing of an arrow at the wound of a deer which is already wounded(37) Subsisting on begged food on the part of a student is compared with fasting (upavāsa) in point of bringing equal merit to the person who performs or undertakes it (45). Vidyā which should not be bestowed on a pupil without merit or money is aptly compared to a good seed, (subham bija) which should not be sown on a barren soil (asara) (47). The son of an Arya by an Aryan woman being worthy of all sacraments is compared to a good seed (subya) in a good soil (suksetra) prospering extremely well in the form of a sprout (219). In one place the giver of sacrificial food to an ignorant Vipra is aptly likened to a some (vaptr) sowing seed on a barren soil (irina), as the activity of both yields no reward (151). Once the bijs of an aksitrin (one having no wife) sown on another's wife is compared to the dropped seed or bija of a buil (arsabham bija) sown on cows belonging to others, in point of being fruitless to the sower (149). The corporeal beings resuming (in new births) their respective kinds of action (prescribed by the creator) are compared to seasons obtaining their respective characteristics of their own accord at the change of each season (49). Dead body is said to resemble a log of wood (55) and a clod of clay (176) in point of being abandoned as useless. A clod of clay (losta) dissolving in a great lake (mahāhrda) is used as an Upamāna for evil deeds melting under the influence of the triple Veda (161)

21. Houses cursed by female relations call comparison to houses affected by kylvd in respect of the common property i.e. bringing about rum (58). Silken cloth (kṣauma) is used as an Upamana for conch-she.ls, horns, bones and ivory on account of the common property of being purified by a mixture of cow's urine and water (60). The sarth (gauh) which yields its product only after a good deal of work upon it is brought in as the standard of comparison for unrighteousness which also produces its fruit after an amount of time and not at once (79). The earth (dharā) also becomes the Upamāna for a king in point of supporting all creatures equally (112) In one case, land (bhilms) has become the Upamāna for water, carnal enjoyment of women, jeweis in water as well as those made of stones as false evidence or speech in case of all these leads to the same disastrous consequences (156). A planet (graha) standing supreme among stars (naksatra) is brought in comparison with the supervisor (sarvarthacintaka) appointed by a king lording over the subordinate (80). All created beings are shown to resemble the wheel in being turned round and round continuously by the Lord (82). Skins and objects made of split cane are compared to clothes (caila) (86) and vegetables, roots and fruits are likened to grain (114) in point of being cleansed with water etc. The moon giving delight to men is given as the Upamana for a king giving delight to his subjects (89) The sevenfold kingdom is shown to resemble the triple staff of an ascetic as in case of both no single part is more important than the other, all being equally important 101) An ignorant householder (of course a Brahmana) accepting gold, land, cow, etc. stands on par with a puce of wood (daru) which is reduced to ashes (by contact with fire) and so turns out to be useless (105). A tree (druma) that is being watered well (stepamāna, becomes the Upamāna for the nation of a king protected by him in point of growth and prosperity (194). A tree becomes the subsidiary Upamana with fire which can be seen under fire see Sec. 17 above. A tree (vykya) leaving the bank of a river as well as a bird (fakura) leaving the tree (196) are offered as the standards of comparison for an ascetic leaving his body and becoming free from attachment. Impurities of metallic eres (dhātu) which are burnt on account of being melted in a blast become the standard of comparison for taints of the senses or organs which also are destroyed through the control of breath (113).

place in the assan (sāgarā) supply the Upamāna for ail members of other orders of life (āsramās) finding protection in a house-holder (119). A river (nimnagā) united with the assan (samidra) is the standard of comparison for a wife united with her husband, as in case of both the former assumes the qualities of the latter (212). Rivers (sindhavāh) running towards the assan (samidra) again become the Upamāna for the subjects turning towards i.e. following that king who subdues his passions and decides the affairs according to law (213). Killing a brāhmaņa becomes the Upamāna for falsely attributing a high birth to oneself, giving information to king (regarding a crime) and falsely accusing a teacher (153) while stealing gold is chosen as the Upamāna for stealing a deposit, a horse, silver, land, men, diamonds and gems (175). In one place voluntary neglect of sacred fires on the part of an Agnihotrin is said to resemble the killing of a warrior (192), while in another, forgetting the Veda, reviling the Vedas, giving a false witness, slaying a friend, eating forbidden food and swallowing substances unfit for food are declared to be on par with drinking wins (221). In all these cases the common property is the same namely papavahatoa.

PECULIARITIES OF CONSTRUCTION OF THE SIMILIES

Manusmrti is primarily a work on Dharmasastra. Hence the author is not much interested in expressing his similes in the usual form accepted in Poetics. Consequently peculiarities of construction figure prominently in the work.

 Majority of the Upamās contain single Upamānas. These are 176 in number. Out of these seven are Malopamas. In 46 Upamās, a double Upamāna is present. Among these instances of Malopama are 3 Some Upamas contain a triple Upamāna also. These are 5 in number. In No. 61 vahni, edhas and tegar are given as the Upamanas for vedavit, papa and jāānāgni respectively. The sādhūraņa dharma is dahana. For the disagreement in gender and the sādhāraņa dharma with slight variation see sections 4 and 10 respectively. In No. 22, asrkpala, migayu and miga are the standards of comparison for anumana, nipats and dharma respectively. Here the sadharana dharma is padanayana. For the twice mention of sadharana dharma see section 10 and for the samanya-visesa-bhava between the Upameya and the Upamana see section 15 below In No. 54 nrpa, paripanthun and rāstra are compared to nudātā, kaksa and dhānya respectively in respect of uddhrtya raksanam, which is the sādhārana dharma. For the disagreement in gender and number see section 3 below. In 151, uaptā, bija and înņa are brought m correspondence with data, haves and anrea vipra respectively in point of na labhate phalam which is the common property, For the disagreement in case refer to section 7 In No. 154, bahya, cāturvarnya and bāhyatara are likened to fūdra, brāhmaņi and bāhya in respect of prasuyate which is the sadharana dharma. For the disagreement in gender see section 4 below. No. 28 is the solitary instance of Upamā containing a quadruple Upamāna. Here aditya, toya, raimin and samudra (lupta) are brought in as t Figures indicate the serial numbers of the similes in chapter 3.

- standards of comparison for nrpa, kara (tax), adhikārin (lupta) and rāstra respectively. The sādhārana dharma is harana or acceptance. For the disagreement in gender see section 4 below For the restrictive adjective in the Upamāna-vākya see section 14 below. For the laps in both the Vākyas in this Upamā see section 16 below
- The words expressive of Upama are generally pathatathā and we In No. 5 soom is used for expressing Upamā and the antecedent yethe is dropped. This antecedent is dropped in No. 149 also and tatha is used. In No. 11 we is irregularly used for yatha. In Nos. 57 and 197 two pairs of Upamanas namely wiksa and nadikūla as well as sakun: and wiksa are given for the double Upameya yat: and his deha. As this is done with two different setences, yatha is repeated twice. In the irregularly expressed Upamā where carmanaya mrga (167) and kāsthamaya hasta (228) are brought in comparison to anadhiyana mpra, the poet being influenced by the word 'te' in 'd' uses yatta instead of tothe for emphasizing the Upameya. When the usual order of the Upamana and Upameya is inverted, tatha, which should be mentioned with the Upameya is generally dropped. This happens in Nos. 53, 67, 123, 152 and 217 in view of the Upameyavākya preceding the Upamāna-vākya. At times ios, the Upamāvācaka comes after the adjective of the Upamāna as in No. 94 where we comes after the adjective argaraps of the Upamana narg which is to be taken twice i.e. both with the Upameyavākya and the Upamāna-vākya. This happens in No. 58 a.so. where is comes after the adjective krtydhatan of the Upamana seldm which is to be supplied from the first line of the verse.
- 3. Disagreement in either of the two namely gender or number or in both is very common in Manusmits. There is disagreement in gender as well as number between is i.e. wiprāh and ambu (40), anumānma and ankpātaih (22), kaksam and paripanthmah (54), savarnāh guruyositah and guru (65), pāpānam nigrahena and sādhūnām sangrahena with ijrābhih (111), prākaranika (grhastha) and putitkāh (134), sādhvī sirī and brahma-cārināh (152) abjesu aimamayesu ratnesu and bhūmi (156) and prajāh and priyadvesyau (173).

- 4. Disagreement in gender obtains between the subordinate Upameya jādadgasad, and the corresponding Upamāna tijaid in No.6, on account of the Rupaka jadnagmad, which otherwise would have been jäänena. This kind of disagreement (i.e. in gender) is also very common in Manusmiti. Thus it exists between anicali inprah and irautasmārta karman (lupta) with dānam and ajitah respectively (10), asvamedha and aghamarsanam süktam (20) enas and trac (23), adharma and trac (24) jimtātyayamāpannah and pāpam and akdiam and panks respectively (25), kers and toyam as well as rastram and samudra (lupta) (28) harmam andam and sahasramlu (29),lobhālpratigrahakrimpra and ambhan āmopātram (33), bijam and paraparigraha with if and kham respectively (37), prajhā and indrivan with adokum and dripada respectively (39), bhaikiena urtii and upavāsa(45), vidyā and šubham bijām (47), (yatsh) deha and (nadi-) külam (57), jämisäpa and kriyä 58), adharma and gauh [cow .74], earth (79)], rasgram and pathe gauh (76), angea uspra and frauta-marta karman (lupta) with gauh and gauh (77) to sarve i.e. rajapurusah and naksatram (80), nepateh yafas and loka with ghriabindu and ambhas (81) as well as tailabindu and ambhas respectively (99) prakitayah (subjects) and mānavāḥ (83), atayasām nuvraņām pātrām and camasāh (84), saptāngam rājyam and tridandah (101), rājan and dharā (112) indriyāni and dhātavah (113), gurugatā vidyā and vāri (120), duhitā and putra (135), cāturvarnya and brāhmaņi where căturnarya is used for want of a suitable feminine form (154), indrigant and vajinah (171), karah (tax) and adyam (178, 189 and 209) kāmakāratah agnināmapavedha and virahatyā (192), rästram and surjamäna druma (194) frautasmärta karman (lupta) and strî (210) äryäyäm and suksetre (219).
- 5. Disagreement in number only is found in to 1 e mprôh and prolone i.e. agni (4), dojam and drumân (7), piterah and vâyu (183) and ubhau i.e. vaijapērthwau and fūdra (205).
- 6. Comparison of many Upameyas with a single Upamāna results in disagreement in either number or gender or in both. Disagreement in number exists between srsyāmsah, āryāh guruputrāh, guroh soabāndhaoāḥ and guru (63), carmaṇi vaidalāni with cailam (86), rakṣādhikṣtaḥ (narāḥ) sāmantāḥ and caura (90), agmdaḥ, bhaktadaḥ, sastrāvakāladaḥ, sammdhātaraḥ and caura (91), and śākāni, mūlāni, phalām and dhānyam (114). At times such a comparison results in disagreement in gender also as is seen in No. 153 where all the Upameyas namely samutharse anytam, rājagāmi paisunam and guroḥ alikami bandhah differ in gender from the Upamāna brahmahatyā. In No. 156, strīnām bhogah and maithunam in gender from bhūmi, the Upamāna. The same happens in No. 221 where the Upameyas namely brahmojihatā, suhrdnadhah and garhitānādyayoh jagāhih differ from the Upamāna surāpānam. This way of comparing many Upameyas with a single Upamāna has once given rise to disagreement in gender as well as in number as is seen between one of the Upameyas namely abjaju aimamayaju rainaju and the Upamāna bhūmi. (156)

- Disagreement in case is also conspicuous by its presence. In No. 78, the correspondence of case between spalpaka pratigraha, and panka cannot be maintained on account of the two meanings, primary, and secondary of sidati which is the sādhāraņa dharma. Its secondary meaning (going with pratigraha) namely failure requires the instrumental while the primary meaning (going with panks) stands in need of the locative. In No. 83, the Upameya yamın is in the locative and the Upamana candram is in the accusative due to the correspondence of the expression candram dṛṣṭoā in the Upamāna-vākya with yamun in the Upameya vākya, which ultimately means jom driftvā. No. 143 is an irregularly expressed Upamā where ignorant dātā and ignorant praticehaka are compared to udake taran (nara) and aupala plava. Disagreement in case exuts between the Upameya praticohaka which is in the nominative and the corresponding Upamana aupala place which is in the instrumental. This is due to the fact that the double Upameya is expressed with a double in dåirpraticeakau. For the suggestion contained in the Upama see section 14. In No. 151 anree (caturthi) havirdana is compared to irins (saptami) bijavapana. Here the disagreement is due to the roots connected with the two namely do and sup which govern the dative and the locative respectively,
- Change in construction of the Upamāna-vākya and the Upameya-vākya inevitably results in disagreement in case between the Upameya and the Upamāna. In No. 173, 10ms controlling priyadresyan is brought in comparison with the king or tajon who is advised to control his subjects i.e. projah. Here Tama, the Upamana is in the nominative and rajun the Upameya. is in the instrumental. Similarly in Nos. 178, 189 and 209 valsa and adya, varyokas and adya and saspada and adya are brought in comparison with rajan and lara (tax) in point of alpadana or alpagrahana. Here also the Upamanas namely valsa, vāryokas and satpada are in the nominative while the Upameya rajan is in the instrumental. Disagreement also obtains between karāh which is in the nominative and the corresponding Upamana Edyam which is put in the accusative case. The same is true of No. 185 where māruta is brought in comparison with tājan in point of prantiya sameāra, which is the sādhāraņa dharma. Here also the Upamāna māruta is in the nominative while the Upameya rajus is in the instrumental. In all these cases, the Upameya-vākya is in the passive construction and the Upamāna-vākya in the active. No. 180 offers a case opposite to this putting the Upamanavākya in the passive and the Upameya-vākya in the active. Here rajan is compared to Varana in point of papanam nigraha Because of the construction referred to above, the Upamana Varuna here is put in the instrumental and the Upameya rajan in the nominative.

Annual of the special and the special special

9 This leads us to disagreement in respect of both case and gender. In No. 23, duja and enas are compared to ah; and toac in point of immigrate, which is the sādhāraņa dharma; enas is neuter and toac is feminine. Here enasah is put in the ablative and toacā in the instrumental. This is due to the consideration of metre as toacah, would have disturbed it by causing one letter more. It is also possible to regard the Sandhi toacevāhih as an irregular Sandhi of toacah wa-toacā wa and then double Sandhi toaceva. No. 39 gives a case exactly opposite to this. Here slipping of prapāā due to the misbehaviour of one indriva is compared to the trickling of udaka from dippāda or foot of a skin. Here the Upamāna tena (indrivena) is put in the instrumental and the Upameya drieh pādāt in the ablative, since the root kṣar is used with both the instrumental and the ablative. In No. 112 the prākaraņka rājan is compared with dharā in point of equally supporting the people (dhāraṇa). Here dharā, the Upamāna is put in the nominative while being influenced by the word viatam (of the king) in 'd' the Taddhita pārihwam becomes an adjective. Here bibhratah naturally refers to rājūah (to be supplied) which thus is put in the genitive. The word bibhratah is really the short form of the expression 'yah (rājā) bibharii tasya'. For the anakoluthic construction here see section 23 helow. In No. 219, subīja springing up in sukṣeira is brought in comparison with the son of an Āryan born by an Ārya. Here disagreement in case and gender obtains between the Upamēya (āryāt) masculine and the corresponding Upamāna subījām (neuter), as the former is in the ablative while the latter is in the nominative. This is due to the sādhāraṇa dharma not being really sādhāraṇa. For this see section 12 below.

10. When the Upama is expressed with the help of two independent sentences, the sādhārana dharma is repeated twice Exact repetition of this dharma takes place in Nos. 1, 7, 10, 12, 20, 22, 28, 36, 37, 77 120, 140, 151 and 210 In Malopamas generally the sadharana dharma between the Upameya and the Upamānas is the same. There is only the following exception. In Nos. 144, 193, 202 and 216, rajan is compared to baka (heron), orka wolf), sasa (hare) and simha (hon) respectively. Here the sādhārana dharma 18 different in case of each Upamāna. It is arthacentana in case of baka, avalumpana in the case of mka, umspalana in case of sasa and paräkrama in that of simha. Sometimes the repetition of this sådhärana dharma is undertaken with only a slight variation. In No. 6, dahan is the sadharana dharma which is mentioned once with the upasarga ner (going with the Upamana) and secondly without it (going with the Upameya) In No. 94 the sadharana dharma namely airriya variants occurs with the upararga sam while going with the Upamana and without it, while going with the Upameya. Similarly in No. 169 the sādhāraņa dharma i.e. na himsanti is repeated twice once with the upasarga upa and secondly without it. At times the sādhāraņa dharma is expressed twice but by two synonyms. This happens in No. 161 where the sadharana dharma is expressed once by the word vinaipan and second by mayon which ultimately mean the same thing Sometimes the sādhārana dharma is expressed in both ways negative and positive in order to lend force to the expression. Thus in No. 3, not being satisfied with a negative expression namely na sāmyatī going with the Upameya kāma and their upabhoga, the poet expresses the same idea in a positive manner with the word abhivardhata going with the Upamāna kisnavarīnan and havir. In No. 5, however, the poet uses na dusyatī, a negative expression going with the Upamāna pāvaka and chooses pūjyāh, a positive one with the Upameya. Here the latter being brāhmaṇāh, the positive and emphatic expression in its case can be attributed to the fact that the poet was a champion of Brahmanism.

When the construction of the Upamāna-vākya differs from that of the Upameya-vākya the mention of the sādhāraņa dharma twice in two different expressions becomes necessary. Thus the Upamānavākya is put in the active construction and the Upameya-vākya in the passive and hence the sādhāraņa dharma is mentioned twice in Nos 173, 178 (189, 209), 180 and 185. No. 173 the sādhāraņa dharma is expressed twice but with synonymous expressions namely niyacehati with the Upamāna and nıyanlanyalı with the Lpameya. In Nos. 178 (189 & 209), the dharma takes two different forms according to the nature of the associate. With kara (tax), the Upameya it is alpagrahana (alpogrhitanyah) and with adya, the Upamana it is alpadana (alpane alpam adants). In No. 185, the sādhāraņa dharma is mentioned twice with a variation. With Maruta the Upamana it is pravilya samcāra wh.le with rājan, the Upameya it is merely pravesa or praces largam. In No. 180, however, the poet has preferred to put the Upamana-vakya in passive construction and the Upameyavakya in the active. Here the sādhārana dharma is expressed with different yet synonymous expressions namely baddhāh going with the Upamāna Varuna and mgrhniyāt going with the Upameya rājan. In all these cases, an advice is given to rajon in the Upameyavākya and hence the words expressive of common property (sādhāraņa dharma) going with it (the Upameya) are put in the potentia, namely myantavyāḥ in No. 179, alpo alpo grhitavyaḥ in Nos. 178, (189, 209), pravsšjavyam in No. 185 and nigrhnjyži in No. 180.

The drama with the Upamana is in the present tense. Thus all these are cases of disagreement in mood or mahr. For the difference in case owing to change of construction see sec. 8.

 At times the sādhāraņa dharma is not really sādhāraņa dhorma but is similar and hence it has to be expressed with two different words altogether. This happens in No. 219, where a son born of an Arya from an Arya is compared to subija born in sukseira. Here the sadharana dharma takes two different forms name.y samskāramarhati with the Upameya and sampadyate with the Upamāna. For the difference in case and gender see sec. 9 above and for restrictive expression see sec. 13 below No. 47 offers an example where the choice of passive construction on the part of the poet has created a difficulty in expressing the sadharana dharma which is not really sadharana. Here indya is the Upameya and fubham bija, the Upamāna. The sādhāraņa dharma is conceived as dropping or employing which should have been expressed in two different ways according to the nature of the associate as in No. 219 above. With pidyā it is vaktavyā and with bīja it is papiavyam. The poet had to choose the former instead of using a common expression on account of the passive construction. This has given rise to lingabheda also for which see sec. 4 above. No. 172 offers a different case altogether as Padanidarsana contained in yamya vitti forms the sadharana dharma of the comparison of the nrba or rajan with yama.

13. Sometimes the Upamāna is conditioned by a restrictive attribute or expression in order to bring it in correspondence with the Upameya. In No. 33, the Upameya is a brdhmana who perishes on account of coveting gifts. Here the Upamāna āmapātra is restricted by the attribute ambhasi in order to make it suitable to the context of andia, as āmains by itself does not lead to destriction. In the Upamāna, āma corresponds to labhātpratigraha in the Upameya but there is nothing corresponding to ambhasi in the Upameya. Similarly în Nos. 75 and 76 the Upamāna gauli is restricted by the attributes andhā and panke respectively. In the former this is undertaken to suggest the similiarity of andhātva of gauli with the sambhojanītva of dakṣmā, the Upameya, so that ekatrawāsts stands to reason in case of both. In the latter, panke the adjective of the Upamana gault makes it correspond with rāṣṭram of a king in which a sūdra explains the law, in point of the sādhāraņa dharma sidate. In No. 131, the second Upamāna namely putra for the Upameya frotriya is restricted by the word awasa in order to support sarvatah samraksana, the sadhārana dharma. In No. 158, if the reading jale matsyānivāhimsyuh is accepted, jale becomes a restrictive attribute of the Upamana employed for making it suitable as an Upamana for durabatāh, the Upameya in point of āhunsana to sādhāraņa dharma In No. 219, su in the double Upamāna subija and suksetra is employed in order that it may correspond with the double Upameya ārya and āryā. No. 185 offers an example where a word belonging only to the Upameya is used in order to bring out its correspondence with the Upamana. Here rajan is compared to maruta in point of pramiya samcara, but nothing corresponding to carath (in case of the former) is used in the Upamāna, as cārah belong to the Upameya rājan only and make it correspond to māruta. In No. 97, however, the restrictive adjective anadhiyāna of the Upameya brāhmaņa corresponds to trua which is compared with the Upamana truagui, which means trnakṛta agm. Here the sādhāraṇa dharma is na sāmyati, as both of them do not function for long.

14. At times restrictive words used in the Upamana suggest a corresponding restriction in the Upameya. In No 7, the adjective ārdrān of the Upamāna namely drumān suggests a corresponding adjective such as dustaram or dirgham in case of the Upameya viz. karmajam daşam as 18 indicated by the word api in ardranapi drumân. Similarly the adjective jatebala of the Upamāna vahns suggests the arthajnāna of the Vedas in case of Vedajña, the Upameya. Really the arthajñāna corresponds to the strength of fire. Ultimately the meaning is that just as strong fire burns even wet trees so a learned brahmin destroys even great sins, evils or misfortunes. In No. 21, the adjective kratura; used of the Upamāna assamedha indicates a similar adjective sāktarāt of the Upameya aghamarşana sükta. In No. 28, aştau māsān serves a restrictive adjunct in case of the Upamana adding drawing up water with rays. This suggests a corresponding restriction in the drawing of the taxes (karas) by the nipa gradually on appropriate occassions and in proper time. For the lops in the stanza see Similarly in No. 36, värpikäiusatura mäsän testricis sec. 16 below the Upamāna-vākya namely Indra sending showers and suggests that the nypa (Upameya, should shower gifts on his raspia on proper occasions only. In No. 37, inddhamanumddhyafah restricts the Upamana is which is said to be shot in vain and suggests a similar adjective namely kriptomonik poolah in case of the Upameya namely the person who sows the seed in another's wife 49, stupasyaye restricts the double Upamana stu and studings and suggests a corresponding restriction such as stylpantars in case of the double Upameya dehinah and karmani. Here jius obtaining their distinctive marks i.e. rtulingas are offered as the Upamana for dening resuming their respective karman in their new births. The word palyatah used in the Upameya-vakya in No. 76 where the rastra of a king who allows a sudra to discuss dharma or law in his kingdom is compared to paske gash in point of sidana, suggests the comparison of the king with a cow doy who helplessly watches the calamity In No. 102, the Upamana trivedadhyayana given for the Upameya dharmasāstra suggests the adhyayana of the latter though not expressed. In No. 120, a surrige pupil obtaining pidyd from the gara is compared to a person a sara obtaining cars Le water by digging into the ground with a khamitra i e spade. Here the correspondence between the adjectives of the Upameya and the Upamana namely surrisu and khanstresa khanana suggests the comparison of seed and khanitra. It appears that the poet wants to suggest the adjective prtheigatam of pari, the Upamana corresponding to garagata, the adjective of vidya, the Upameya. This further suggests the comparison of gure and prihat, the former being the treasure of sidys i.e. knowledge and the latter, the storehouse of par i.e water. For the lopa contained in the verse see sec. 16 below. In No. 143 the double Upamāna namely adake teres (sere) and supela place is brought in correspondence with the ignorant dăță and (equatly) ignorant pratichaka Here the instrumenal in the Upāmāna aupala plana brings out its karasatua which suggests a sumilar karanatos of the corresponding Upameya namely praticchake in spite of its being put in the nominative. For the difference in case between the two refer to sec. 7 above. In

No. 194, the adjective seyamāna of the Upamāna druma is intended to bring out the correspondence with bāhubalāsritam in case of the Upameya rāstram. Here bāhubalāsriya is compared to seka or sprinkling, resulting into vardhana or prosperity which is the sādhārana dharma.

Sometimes the Upamana is related to the Upameya as is visesa to samanya. No. 22 is a case in point. Here the subsidiary Upameya is anumāna and the corresponding Upamāna is asykpāla It is evident that asrkpata is only one of the anumanas which lead the migage or hunter to trace the track of miga or deer. For the disagreement in gender and number which results from this, see sec. 3 above. In No 34, the adjective aryarapa of the Upamana nara (to be taken twice in both the vakyas,, corresponds to auguata in the Upameya. Correspondence does exist in case of the two predicative adjectives of the Upameya namely variabeta and kaluşayonıya and a sımılar adjective name.y onarya in case of the Upamana. Smoetimes one and the same word serves as the Upamana and Upameya on account of $lesa as in No. 56 where the word aiga means a member (limb) of the government with the Upameya rajan (prakaranka) and limbs with the Upamana kūrma In No. 1.9, the words expressive of Upamāna namely nadinada is a samāhāra. In No. 148, the secondary Upamana namely ssabha is indirectly mentioned through the taddhita from In Nos. 178 (189, 209), the word expressive of the subsidiary Upamāna namely adya though mentioned once is to be construed with all the three Upamanas namely vaisa, vāryokas and saspada brought in correspondence in the Upameya rajan. For the change in construction resulting into disagreement in case see sec. 8 above For the Lopa see sec. 16 below.

16. This brings us to Luptoparnas. At times words in the Upameya-vākya are lupta. Thus in Nos. 10, 77 and 210, dāna and ajūa, gauh and gauh and sandha and strī are brought in as standards of comparison with aphalatva as sādhārana dharma. Here doubt exists about the exact nature of the double Upameya. Part of it is aurea upra corresponding to dāna, gauh and sandha. The other part corresponding to ajūa, gauh and strī appears to be śrautasmārta karma, as suggested by Kullūka. This, however, is lupta. Thus anyea mpra who is aphala in srautasmarta karma is compared with dans in case of affis, gaub in case of another gaub and sandha in case of striyah; as all these are also aphala. For the resulting disagreement in gender see sec. 4. This happens in No. 120 where a susrasu pupil obtaining vidya from the guru is compared to a stara or a person obtaining sars or water by digging into the ground (khanan) with a khanitra or a spade. Here the correspondence exists between the adjective suirasu in the Upameya-vakya and the corresponding adjective khanitrena khanan in the Upamāna-Thus resulting into the comparison of seed and khamira as pointed out in sec. 14 above. But the substantive brahmacārī in the Upameya-vākya corresponding to sara in the Upamānavakya is not expressed. For other suggestions in the verse see sec. 14 above. Lopa in the Upamāna-vākya is not conspicuous by its absence. In Nos. 178, 189 and 210, vatsa, vāryokas and sathada accepting their adya i.e. food bit by bit are brought in comparison with rajan who is advised to accept the karas (taxes) from his rastra little by little. Here the source of food corresponding to răstra, in the Upameya-vākya is not mentioned in the Upamāna-vākya. For the change of construction in the stanza resulting into difference in case as well as for Upamana being mentioned only once, refer to sections 8 and 15 above. Both these were cases of Lopa in double Upamanas. Lopa in a quadruple Upamāna is also present in No. 28. Here āditya sucking up toya (water) by its raimayah is given as the Upamana for the king i.e. nrpa accepting karas (taxes) from his kingdom i.e. răștra. Here Lopa occurs in both i.e. in the Upameya-vâkya as well as the Upamāna-vākya. Thus corresponding to raimibhih in the Upamāna, there should be adhikāribhih in the Upameya, which, is dropped. On the other hand, the Upamana does not contain the word samudrādibhyah corresponding to rāssyāt in the Upameya. Along with these Upameya-lupta and Upamanaluptă Upamās, the solitary instance of Vādilupta may be mentioned Thus in Nos. 225 and 227 a woman i.e. strî îs compared with a hamse i.e. swan and verage (haster) i.e. elephant in point of gamana or graceful gait. As the Malopama is expressed here with the help of a compound namely hamsavaranagamnim, the

Upamā drops odd: i.e 100 the word expressive of it and hence the

Upamā is Vādauptā. 17. Dharmaluptā Upamā is, however, most common. These Upamas can be mainly divided into two categories, samāsagā and vākyagā. The former occurs when the Upamāvācaka is compounded with the Upamana and the latter occurs when it is not so compounded and the Upamā is expressed with the help of a full sentence. Coming to Dharmalupta Upamas expressed with the help of a samdsa we find that in case of single Upamanas it occurs 7 times and in that of double Upamana only once. Nos. 4 and 40 upras are compared with justans i.e. agm or fire and ambu i e udaka or water. Here the sadhāraņa dharma as understood by Buhler is switted which is not expressed. This would make the Mālopamā Dharmaluptā, jvalanāmbusamā makes it samdsagā. If, however, na dojo bhavan is understood as the common property, Upamā would become samāsagā Pūrņopamā. In Nos 130 and 164, yesthavitti yestha is compared with pita and mātā. This is also Malopamā containing single Upamānas. Here orth or treatment which is the sadharana dharma is omitted. Hence Dharmaluptă ; măteva or puteva make it samăsagă. In No. 45, bhaiksena orth is likened to uparass in point of punydonhaira, the sādhāraņa dharma, which however, is lupta; upavāsasamā brings in samāsagā. In No. 71, retaļisēka with svayonis (sisters by the same mother), kumarıs, untyajas and sakhyuh or putrasya striyah is compared with gurutalpa (violation of Guru's bed) in respect of being păpăvaha or (equally) sınful. Here păpăvahāwa is not expressed. The expression gurutalpasamam makes it samāsagā. In No. 175, the apaharana of miksepa, nasa, asva, rajata, bhūmi vajra, and mam is compared to rukumasteya (stealing gold) and in No. 192, kāmākārataķ agninamapasedha (voluntary neglect of sacred fires) is likened to virahatyā (killing of a warrior or the slaughter of a son), in respect of being (equally) pāpāvaha. The word pāpāvahatva is dropped in both the stanzas. The expression rukmasteyasamam in the latter make both the Upamas samataga. In No. 221, however, many Upameyas, namely brahmoj jhatā, vedanindā, kau jasāksyam, suhrdvadhaje and gashitānādyayah jagdhih are compared to a single Upamāna namely surapanam. Here also the sadharana dharma is papavahatve.

which is lupta. The word surāpānasamam makes this Upamā also samāsagā. No. 11 contains double Upamāna where the intention of the poet is to compare an arthavaikalya-bhāṣitā nara i.e. a liar with an andha i.e. blind man cating sakanjaka matryas i e. fish with bones as both ultimately come to grief. Here duḥkhaprāpti, which is the sādhāraņa dharma is lupta, matryāmia makes it samāsagā. For the irregularity in expressing the Upamā see sec. 22 below.

- 18 This leads us to Vākyagā Dharmaluptā Upamās. They are 7 in number All of them contain single Upamanas, expressed with the help of full sentences. The sadharana dharmas that are lupta are dhanasvikārayogyaiva in case of putra, the Upameya, and ātman, the Upamana in No. 26 as well as in that of Duhita (Upameya) and putra (Upamāna) in No. 135, adaraņīyatva in case of mātrsvasā, mātulānī, svairū with pitrsvasā (Upameyas) and gurubhāryā (Upamāna) in No. 70, doşabhāktva in case of lipsāvān brāhmaņa (Upameya) and stena i.e. caura or thief (Upamāna, in 92, svargasādhanatva in case of dharmasāstra (Upameya) anu trivédādhyayana (Upamāna) in No. 102, pāpāvaliatis in case of many Upameyas namely samutkarş, anrta, rājagāmi paisuna with guroļi alikanırbandhalı and the single Upamana brahmahatyā in No. 153 and paintatea-between the Upameya namely bhartā who causes the duties to be performed by another (woman) when the wife of equal caste exists and the Upamana namely Brālimaṇacāṇḍūla in No. 155
- 19 Thus in Dharmaluptā Upamās we find that pāpd-vahatva and punyāvahatva are the usually omitted dharmas. This is perfectly natural in a work on Dharmašāstra. This shows that the respective Upamānas were too well-known to make the mention of the dharma with reference to them, necessary. Thus upavāsa was known to be punyāvaha and gurutalpa, brahmahatyā, rukmasteya, vīrahatyā and surāpāna were the avowed pātakas of the day. The same argument can be advanced in case duhkhaprāpii of a blind man eating fish with bones, ādaranīyatva in case of pitā and mātā as well as patitatva of a brāhmanacāndāla and doṣabhāktva of a stena or thief.
- 20. Triluptă Upamās occur in expressions like bakariti în No. 145, bakramatika în No. 145A and baidălavratika în No.

148. In these expressions only with or wrate, the Upameya is mentioned and all other parts (remaining three) of the Upamā are dropped. These words are formed on the authority of the Vārtika, 'saptamyupamānapūrvopadasya balauviluruttarapadalopaica.

21. There are only two Upamäs based on Vaidharmya. In No. 74, adharma is compared to gauli in respect of the sādhāraņa dharma-na sadyah phalati. Kulluka takes gauli, in the sense of a milch cow or a full-grown bull which gives its reward immediately and understands the Upamā to be based on Vaidharmya. The Upamā can be considered as one based on Sādharmya if gauli is understood in the sense of a cow which yields its reward i.e. milk only after bringing forth the call and thus bringing about the abhāva of sadyah phatana like that of adharma. No 133, however, is a clear instance of an Upamā based on Vaidharmya, as here the fact that the king who does not cat meat, disregarding the rules, becomes deer to men and free from disease is brought out by the dissimilar example of pišāca eating meat without any idea of observing any rule and becoming hateful

22. In adduon to this, there are some Upamás 11 Manuampti, which are expressed in a totally irregular way Upamās deserve a separate mention. Thus No. 11 compares an arthavaskalyabhāṣṣṭā nara i.e a har with an andha i.e a blind man eating (asana) sakanjaka maisyas i.e. fish with bones as both alitmately come to grief. duḥkhaprāpu, therefore, is the sudhārana diarma, which is not expressed as is indicated in sec. .7 above The Upama is expressed in a very unusual manner Very probably the poet has conceived it as a Nidarsana where arthavaskalya-bhāṣstā narah is ultimately compared to sakantakamaisyabhaksayıld andhah. This is indicated by the fact that the Upameya sa narah is sandwitched between two parts of the Upamana namely matryam and kantakath. If we is taken to be Utpreksavacaka, the Nidaršanā would certainly be less spout. In No. 149, two verses namely IX-50 and 51 go to form the Upama. The real Upama is in 50 d and 51 ab, 50 d expects a context of 51 a, b and c. The antention of the poet is to compare the seed (bija) of an akistrin (i.e. another's wife) to the dropped (skandita) bija (i.e. seed) of a bull (ārṣabha) in cows belonging to others. The sādhāraņa dharma

Upamāna corresponding to parakistrapravāpi is expressed indirectly with the Taddhita form ārjabham as indicated in sec. 15 above. The Upameya has two adjectives namely akistra and parakistrapravāpin. Corresponding to the latter there is anyagam in 50 a i.e. the Upamāna-vākya; but a similar adjective corresponding to akistra in the Upameya could not be conceived in case of rijabha or mijabha, the Upamāna, as the latter does not possess any kistra as such.

- In two Upamas, the construction becomes anakoluthic in view of the irregularity in expressing the Upama. Thus in No. 112, dhará or earth is brought in as an Upamana for réjus in point of bhittanam dharana i.e. supporting all creatures. Here the poet begins with an active construction in the Upamanavakya and puts the Upamana diard in the nominative; but being influenced by the words parthwam watern in d, he chooses to express the Upamāna rājan which is to be supplied with a genitive (such as rajitah) as shown by the expression bibliratah. This bibliratah is to be taken as the short form of the expression yak bibharis tasya as is shown in sec. 9 above. Nos. 167 and 228 offer another example. of this kind of construction. Here carmanaya mrga and kasthamaya hastin are brought in comparison with an anadhisana more in point of nama bibhrati, which is the common property. Here the poet uses yaica instead of tatha for emphasizing the Upameya as shown in sec. 2 above. The poet begins with an Upama, but being influenced by the word 'tt' in d which replaces tathā by yasta, concludes the verse with a Dipaka where the praketa tipra and apraketa miga and hastis are connected by means of one common property namely name bibhrate. Hence the anakoluthic construction.
- 24 In conclusion, we find that the author of Manusmrti is not very particular in expressing Upamās as they are not his primary concern. This gives rise to changes of construction in the Upameya-vākya and the Upamāna-vākya, which in their turn, give rise to disagreement in case. Parts of the Upameya and Upamāna are dropped many a time. Dharmaluptā is not conspicuous by its absence. Irregularities in expressing the Upamā do arise on account of the change of the mind of the poet. This brings in anakoluthic construction.

TRANSLATION (OF THE PASSAGES) AND NOTES

(1) श्राप्ति (and महर्गेनतम्)

A Brāhmaṇa, be he ignorant (anduān) or learned (udvān) is a great divinity just as Agni i.e. fire whether consecrated (pranīta) by prayers or not consecrated (apranīta) is a great divinity (IX-317)

Upameya— Brāhmaņa

Upamāna-Agnz

Sādhāraņa Dharma-mahat dawatam,

Upamāvācaka—Yethā

Note Correspondence between Brāhmaṇa and Agm as also between and apraṇita, viduān and praṇita is intended; only they have been mentioned in an inverted order i.e. the correct order would have been apraṇitasea pranitasea. But this would have disturbed the metre by causing one letter more The Upameya-vākya precedes the Upamāna-vakya, hence the dropping of tathā. The Upamā is expressed with the help of two independent sentences; therefore the common property namely dawatam mahat is menuoned twice.

(2) व्यक्ति (and प्रतापशुक्तस्व-तेजस्विस्व)

(If) he (i.e. the king) is ardent in wrath (pratāpayukta) against criminals and endowed with brilliant energy (tejasvi), and destroys wicked vassals, then his character (watom) is said (to resemble) that of Fire (āgneyam) (IX-310)

Upameya: nipa from stanza 309.

Upamanā-Agm

Sādhāraņa Dharma —pratāpayukta and tejasvī

Note — This is Gamyopamā suggested by the Nidarśanā contained in 'āgneyam watam' in d. 'As the Upamā is gamyā, the Upamāvācaka is conspicuous by its absence

(3) अस्ति 1.c कृष्णवस्मीत् and इतिस्

Desire is never extinguished by the enjoyment of desired objects; it only grows stronger like Krymanariman i.e. fire (fed) with hans i.e. clarified butter or oblation.

(II - 94),

Upameya Kāma and Kāmānām upabhoga Upamāna—kṛṣṇavariman and havis Sādhāraṇa Dharma-—abhivardhate and na sāmyati Upamāvacaka, iva,

Note -This Upama contains a double Upamana. Here the Sadharana Dharma is repeated twice, once namely na sampati goes with the Upameya and the other abhavardhate, with the Upamana. The former is negative, while the latter is positive. Not being satisfied with the negative expression in a and b the poet expresses the same idea in a positive manner in d

(4) श्ररिन 1.¢. ज्वलन (and सदीवभाक्त्व)

By teaching, by sacrificing for, and by accepting gifts from despicable (men), no sin accrues to Brāhmaṇas or Vipras, (for) they (to) are like palana i.e. fire (and ambu 1 e. water) (X -103)

Upameya: Te i.e. viprāh mentioned in c

Upamānas: jvalana as well as ambu

Sādhāraņa Dharma—na doșo bhavatı

Upamāvācaka—sama

Note.—This is a Mâlopamä as two Upamänas are mentioned for one Upameya. There is disagreement in number between the Upameya namely to which is plural and Upamänas namely jualana and ambu, both of which are singular in number. There is also disagreement in gender between the Upameya i.e. to and one of the two Upamänas namely ambu, as the former is masculine while the latter is neuter.

G. Bühler translates d as 'for they (are as pure)' as fire and water. It seems that the common property between the Upamanas and the Upameya, according to him is purity or huntur. This would make the stanza an instance of Dharmaluptā Upamā as the dharma namely huntur or purity is left to be understood. This construction, though quite plausible, is not necessary in view of 'na daşa bhanatı' mentioned in a which serves the purpose of supplying the common property intended by the poet.

(5) अनिन 1.c. पासक and स्तराान

The brilliant fire namely pânaka is not contaminated even.

in burial places i e imasāneņu and when presented with oblations (of butter) at sacrifices, it again increases mightily. Thus, though Brāhmaņas employ themselves in all (sorts of) mean occupations, they must be honoured in every way, for (each of) them is a very great deity (IX-318-19).

Upameya Brāhmana and anistāni karmāni

Upamāna: Pāvaka arīd smašānas

Sādhāraņa Dharma na dusyati and pūjyāh

Upamāvāsaka , evam

hate There is a double Upamāna in the Upamā. Here the antecedent yathā is dropped. The Sādhārana Dharma is repeated, once negatively in na dusyati going with the Upamāna and then positively with pājyāh going with the Upameya. Not being satisfied with a negative expression in verse 3.8 v, the poet expresses the same idea in a positive manner in verse 319 c. The emphasis on the Sādhārana Dharma going with the Upameya namely Brāhmaṇas, stands to reason in case of the author who is a champion of Brahmanism. Here the antecedent yathā is dropped.

(6) व्यक्ति । ६. विद्वि and एथस् and तेपस्

Just as vahm i.e. five in one moment consumes with its flame (tejasā) the fuel (edhas, that has been placed upon it, even so he who knows the Vedas, destroys all guilt by the fire of knowledge (jāānāgamā) (XI—246)

Upameya Vedavit, pāpa and thānāgni Upamāna. Vahni, edhas and tejas Sādhārana Dharma nirdahati or dahati

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā

Note—Here a triple Upamāna is present. Jūanāgni is a Rūpaka. On account of this Rūpaka, there is disagreement in gender with reference to the corresponding tajasā in the Upamānavākya. Otherwise jūāna would have been the proper Upameya. As the Upamā is expressed with the help of two independent sentences, the Sādhārana Dharma namely nirdalati is mentioned twice, once with the Upasarga nir and secondly without it.

This is Pürņopamā helped by Rūpaka and hence the verse is an example of Sankara of Rūpaka and Upamā.

(7) शन्ति i.e. इन्ति धार्वे हुम

Just as vahm or fire that has gamed strength (jātabalo) consumes even trees (drumān) full of sap (ārdrān), even so he who knows the Veda, burns out the taint of his soul which arises from (evil) acts. (XII-101).

Upameya Vedajāa and Karmaja dosa Upamāna.—Jālabalo Vahni and druma Sādhārana Dharma:—dahaii, Upamāvācaka —yathā—tathā

Note—This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Vedajāa a is compared with jātabalo vahni. It is clear that by Vedajāa a person who knows the meaning of the Vedas in addition to knowing it by heart is meant. Compare 'granthato arthatasca vedajāah (Kulluka) and the knowledge of the meaning corresponds to the increased strength of the fire. Corresponding to the adjective ārdran, author probably means that we should supply a corresponding adjective in case of karmajam dosam such as dustaram or dirgham, as is indicated by api in ārdrānapi drumān. There is also disagreement in number between dosam and drumān i.e. the former is singular, while the later is plural. The Sādhāraņa Dharma, as usual, is mentioned twice in keeping with two sentences that go to form the Upāmā.

- (8) आह and कुमें see under कुमें and सह No 56 below.
- (9) भना (and उत्पादकस्य प्रजानागित्नामान)

As with cows (gauh), mares (asvā), female camels (uṣirā), slave-girls (dāsī), buffallo-cows (mahyī), she-goat i.e. ajā and ewes (avikā) (belonging to others), it is not the begetter i.e. utpādakah, who obtains the offspring (but their owner alone is so); even thus (it is) with the wives of others (IX-48).

Upameya: anyānganā

Upamānas, ajā, gauḥ, aśvā, ustra, dāsi, mahīṣi, ankā (belonging to others)

Sādhārana Dharma, notpādakah projābhāgi

Upamāvācaka yathā—tathā

Note: - The stanza is an instance of Mālopamā as anyānganās are here compared with as many as seven Upamānas namely ajā, gauḥ, aśvā, uṣṭra, dāsī, mahṣī and avikā (belonging to others).

In the Upama, ustra, the feminine form is evidently intended, although ustra is the word that actually occurs. Hence ustra should be understood as referring to ustrajate.

(10) अइ and दान

Just as a sandha i.e. a sunuch is unproductive with striyali i.e. women, as a gauli, or corb with another gauli is unprolific and as dāna i.e. gift made to apāa i.e. an ignorant man yields no reward i.e. aphala, even so is Brāhmana useiess, who (does) not (know) Rks (II—158).

Upameya aurca vipra and śrautasmārta karma (lupta)

Upamānas: (i) dānam and ajīta

(ii) sandha and siri

(111) gauh and gauh

Sädhärana Dharma aphalatva

Upamāvācaka: yathā—tathā

Mate:—There is a double Upamāna in this Mālopamā: dānam and ajña, saṇiha and strī, and gauh and gauh. Aphalatva is the Sādhāraṇa Dharma which is exactly repeated. The doubt, however, is about the exact nature of the double Upameya. Part of it is anjeah viprah corresponding to dānam, saṇiha and gauh. The other part corresponding to ajñe, strāiju, and gam seems to be drautasmārta karma (performed through anjea vipra) as suggested by Kullūka. There is disagreement in respect of gender between the Upameya namely anjea vipra (masculine) and two Upamānas namely dānam (neuter) and gauh (feminine). The other Upameya frautasmārtam karman (neuter) differs in gender from all the three Upamānas namely ajūa (masculine), strī (feminine) as well as gauh (feminine).

(11) अन्य and सकप्टकमरस्यारान

That man who is a court (of justice) gives an untrue account of a transaction (arthonoikalya) (or asserts a fact) of which he was not an eye-witness, resembles an andha or a blind man who swallows matiyas i.e. fish with kanjakas i.e. bones (VIII—95).

Upamēya. Nara and arthavaskalyabhāṣana Upamāna: Andha and sakantakamatsyāśana Sādhārana Dharma duḥkhaprāptı (lupta) Upamāvācaka: wa Note In effect, the Upamā containing a double Upamāna, appears like Vākyagā where wa is irregularly used for yathā. The intention of the poet is to compare a liar with a blind man eating fish with bones (kanṭakaiḥ saha). Sakanṭakamaiṣyāśana is conceived as the subsidiary Upamāna for Arthavaikalyabhāṣaṇa, both being dangerous.

It is, however, probable that the poet has conceived this as a Nidarsanā where the liar is identified with or represented as a blind man swallowing fish with bones. This is clear from the words 'sa narah' referring to the Upameya (har), sandwitched between the two parts of the Upamāna namely maisyān and kantakath. But this intended Nidarsanā is spoilt by the use of the Upamāvācak wa. It is perhaps possible to take this wa as an Utprekṣāvācaka, in which case the Nidarsanā would be less spoilt.

As it stands, the stanza would be an example of Śrauti Samāsagā Dharmaluptā Upamā. It is Dharmaluptā as the common property (dharmā) namely duḥkhaprāph (i.e. coming to giref) is not expressed.

(12) अवर्षक and पूर्वेषक

As the Aparapakça i.e. the second half of the month (hysnapakça) is preferable to Pürvapakça i.e. the first half (śuklapakça), even so the afternoon is better for (the performance) of a funeral sacrifice than the fore-noon (III 278).

Upameya: Aparāhņņa and pūrvāhņņa Upamāna: Aparapakṣa and pūrvapakṣa Sādhāraṇa Dharma: višsgyate

Upamāvācaka: yothā—lathā
Note—Here also a double Upamāna is present. The Sādhāraṇa Dharma namely urispate is expressed twice in keeping with the two sentences used, in expressing the Upamā. The repetition is exact. For the Aparapakṣa giving better fruit than Pārvapakṣa, compare 'kṛṣṇapakṣah suklapakṣāt srāddhaṣya sambandhī wisṣṭaphalado bhavatī (Kullūka).

(13) অনূর (and মান্যক্রা)

A Brāhmana should (always) dislike homage like poison i.e. viņa and constantly desire (to suffer) scorn i.e. avamāna as (he would long for) Amita i.e. nectar (II—162).

Upameyas (i) avamāna, (n) sammāna

Sādhāraņa Dharma, ākānkṣet

Upamāvācaka: wa

Note:—Here 'udvijeta viṣādiva' in b contains another independent Upamā for which see No. 191 below. Thus the verse contains two Upamās. In both t. Upameyas viz. avamāna and sammāna are masculine in gender, while the Upamānas namely amṛtam and viṣam are neuter in gender.

(19) (श्रम्मसि) श्रश्मप्तव (and मञ्जन)

A Brāhmaņa who neither performs austerities nor studies the Veda, yet delights in accepting gifts sinks with it (i.e. pratigraha), just as (he who attempts to cross over in) a boat made of stone i.e. aimaplava (is submerged) in the water (ambhasi) along with it V-190)

Upameya An anadhīyāna dvija with pratigraha Upamāna A dvija with an ambhasi) asmaptava, Sādhāraņa Dharma, majjati Upamāvācaka, wa

Note:—There is a correspondence between the attributes of the main Upamāna and Upameya both of which are conveyed by the same word dvijah. 'Want of study and penance' correspond to the 'use of a stone-boat in water'. Majjati is the Sādhāraṇa Dharma. It metaphorically means 'sinks down or perishes' and literally it means 'sinks' or 'is submerged'. The double Upameya is dvija receiving a pratigraha for prosperity and the Upamāna is the dvija who uses an asma-plava i.e. a stone-boat in water. In case of the Upameya the cause which leads to the failure of his pratigraha is want of study and penance and that in case of the Upamāna is 'being made of stone' of the boat makes him sink. Thus there is a correspondence between the two.

Here in this interpretation 'tena' refers to the pratigraha only and not to the 'dātā' as Kullūka and other commentators suggest. If their interpretation of 'tena' referring to 'dātā' is accepted, the whole simile will be disturbed, for it will bring out a correspondence between dātā and plana. But the dātā never wants to become a plana i.e. a cause of tarana himself, but offers grits to the daya whom he expects to be a plana leading him to the heavenly world. Between the dātā and pratigraharusih dayah, the latter is expected to be a plana leading the former to a higher world. So it is better to take 'tena' as referring to pratigraha in the Upameya or else supply dātā as the subject of majjati in d and take the first half as a relative clause with pah supplied and tenana going with it in view of No. 143 below.

(20) असमेश (and सर्वेगापानोदन)

As the Alvamedia i.e. horse-sacrifice, the king of sacrifices removes all sin, even so that Aghamarşana hymn effaces all guilt (XI—260.).

Upameya Aghamarşana Sükta, Upamänä: Asvamedha Sädhörana Dharma: Sarvepāpāpanodanatva Upamävācaka: yethā—tathā Note.—Here the suggestive adjective kraturat used of the Upamāna Asvamedha indicate that a similar adjective is to be understood in case of the Upameya i.e. the Aghamarṣaṇa Sūkta such a sūkṭarāṭ i.e. the best of Sūktas. There is disagreement in gender with reference to the Upameya Aghamarṣaṇa Sūkta and the Upamāna Asvamedha i.e. for former is neuter while the latter is masculine. The common property or the Sādhāraṇa Dharma is mentioned twice in keeping with two independent sentences that go to form the Upamā. The repetition is exact.

(21) श्रद्धा (and उरपादकस्य प्रजाभागित्वासाव) IX-48.

Upameya: anyānganā

Upamāna aśvā (belonging to others)

Sādhārana Dharma notpādakah prajābhāgi

Upamāvācaka: yethā-tathā

Note:—For the details of the Upamā see under war No. 9 above.

(22) असुक्पात and मृग्यु and मृग्

As a hunter i.e mrgayu traces the har (pada) or tracks the the steps of a (wounded) deer i.e. mrga by the drops of blood i.e. asrkpāta, even so the king (nrpati) shall discover the path of Dharma (i.e. shall discover on which side the right lies) by inferences i.e. anumāna (from the facts) (VIII—44)

Upameya. Nrpati, dharma and anumāna Upamāna Mrgayu, mrga and asīkpāta Sādhāraņa Dharma' padanayana,

Upamäväcaka: yathā—tothā

Note.—This Upamā contains a triple Upamāna. Here asrkpātath in the Upamāna corresponds with anumānana in the Upameya. Between the two there is disagreement in respect of number and gender. As a matter of fact asrkpāta is only an anumāna i.e. hetu, so that in the Upamāna one particular anumāna is mentioned, while in the Upameya anumāna in general is stated. It is also possible to drop both these in the scheme of the Upamā because asrkpāta and anumāna are not really related to each other as the Upamāna and Upameya but only as the višesa and sāmānya. The Sādhāraṇa Dharma is repeated twice in keeping with the two sentences that go to form the Upamā. Disagreement mood or widh is present here as the root m is used in the present tense in the Upamāna and with the potential form in the Upameya.

(23) बहि and स्वच्

A dvya i.e. twice-born man who (daily) repeats these three (i.e. vyāhrtus) one thousand times outside (the village), will be freed after a month even from great guilt, as a snake or ahr from its slough i.e. tvac (II—79).

Upameya: dvija and enas Upamāna, ahi and tvac

Sādhāraņa Dharma; vimucyate

Upamāvācaka: 10a

Note Here a double Upamāna occurs. In the Upamā, tracā corresponds with enasah. There is disagreement in respect of gender between them, the former is feminine, while the latter is neuter. Moreover, the Upamāna namely tracā is put in the instrumental while the corresponding Upameya namely enasah is in the ablative. This is evidently for the sake of metre as it would have been disturbed if tracah namely the ablative were to be used. Even though the root much with m is associated with both the ablative and the instrumental (cases), the former is more common; hence the poet has begun with it. It is, however, possible to say that tracera should be taken as equal to tracā ma and then a double Sandhi.

(24) महि and स्वच

In proportion as a man who has done wrong (adharma), himself confesses it, even so far is he left by i.e. freed from guilt as a snake or ahi is left by i.e. freed from its slough i.e. trac (XI—228),

Upameya: nara and adharma

Upamāna: ahs and tvac

Sādhāraņa Dharma: mucyate

Upamāvācaka yathā yathā and tathā-tathā

Note —The Upama contains a double Upamana. Here traca corresponds with adharmena. There is disagreement in respect of gender bewteen them, the former is feminine while the latter is masculine.

(25) आकारा and पह

He, who when in danger of losing his life accepts food from any person whatsoever, is not tainted by sin just as the sky i.e. ākāša is not affected or tainted by mud i.e. panka (X—104).

Upameya, Jimtātyayamāpannaļi (purusa) and pāpa

Upamāna: Akāla and panka Sādhāraņa Dharma: na lipyate

Upamāvācaka, wa

Note—Here also a double Upamāna is present. There is disagreement in gender between the principal Upameya namely jīmātyayamāpannah (puruṣaḥ) (masculine) and the corresponding Upamāna namely ākāsam (neuter) as well as the subsidiary Upameya namely pāpena ineuter) and the corresponding Upamāna namely pānkena (masculine).

(26) बात्मन् (and धनस्वीकारयीग्यत्व)

A son is even as good as oneself i.e. āimā, (such) a daughter, i.e. duhitā is similar to a son i.e. putra, how can another (heir) take the estate or dhana (lit. money) while such (an appointed daughter who is even) oneself, lives? (IX—130).

*Оратеу*ц: putra.

Upamāna: ātman

Sādhāraņa Dharma dhanasvīkārayogyaiva (lupta)

Upamāvācaka, yathā-tathā

Note:—This is Srauti Vākyagā Dharmaluptā Upamā. It is Dharmaluptā because the dharma or the common property namely dhanasvīkārayogyaton is lupta i.e. not expressed. As a matter of fact, however, the author does not mean a mere Upamā here, it is something more. A representative i.e. pratiniahi rather than a standard of comparison i.e. Upamāna, is intended to be conveyed by the word pathawa tathā.

For another Upamā contained in the verse see No. 135 below.

(27) श्रादित्य (and तपन)

And like aditys or the Sun, he burns the eyes and the hearts (of men), nor can anybody on earth even gaze on him (VII—6).

Upameya: esa i.e. nipa from stanza 5, Upamāna: āduya, Sādhāraņa Dharma: tapana,

Upamāvācaka: vat

(28) बादित्य and तोब and रहितन् and समुद्र

As āditya or the Sun during eight months, imperceptibly) draws up the water i e toya with his rays i.e. raimibhih, even so let him gradually draw his taxes from his kingdom for that is his arkawata i.e., the office in which he resembles the Sun (IX—305).

Upameya prākaraņika nīpa and kara, adhikāriņah and rāstra Upamāna. āditya and toya and raimin and samudrādi

Sādhāraņa Dharma; haraņa Upamāvācaka; yathā—tathā

Note.—The Upamā contains a quadruple Upamāna. Here disamāsān is a restrictive adjective in the Upamānavākya and perhaps it suggests a corresponding restriction in the drawing of taxes by the King gradually on appropriate occasions in proper times. The sun can draw up water during eight months. The King also should receive taxes and tributes only on proper occasions. For a similar adjective compare 'vārņikānisaturo māsān' in No. 36 below. Corresponding to raimibhih of the Upamāna, there is nothing actually stated in the Upameya. Perhaps adhikāribhih is suggested. On the other hand, the Upamāna does not contain the word samudrādi corresponding to rāsīrāt in the Upameya. The Sādhārana Dharma is here repeated twice with the same root he in the Upamāna. This gives rise to the disagreement in mood i.e. vidhi.

'arkauratam' in d is an instance of Nidarsanā. The stanza, therefore, is an instance of Sankara of Upamā and Nidarsanā. Sankara is defined by Mammaţa as 'auisrāntijusāmatmanyangāngi tuam tu sankarh'

(29) ब्रावित्य i.c. सहस्रोशु (and प्रमा)

That (seed) became a golden egg, in brilliancy (prabhā) equal to the Sun i.e. Sahasrāmāu, in that (egg) he himself was born as Brāhmaṇa, the progenitor of the whole world (I—9).

Upameya, haimam anda Upamāna: Sahasrāmsu Sādhārana Dharm: prabhā Upamāvācaka: samam

Note:—There is disagreement in respect of gender between the Upameya andam (which is neuter) and the Upamana Sahasrāmsu (which is masculine).

(30) आप and बस्स see No. 177 below.

(31) স্থাৰ and ৰাখ^ৰন্ধন see Nos. 177 and 188 below.

(32) সাত্র and স্বৃদ্ধ see Nos. 177 and 208 below.

(33) आम्पात्र (and विनास)

And if a Brahmana, though learned in Veda, accepts through covetousness a guft from such (a man), he will quickly perish like amapatra i.e. a vessel of unburnt clay in water (ambhasi) (III-179).

Upameya: lobhātpratigrahakrt vipra

Upamāna: ambhasi āmapātra

Sādhārana Dharma vināšam vrajati

Upamāvācaka: wa

Note:-In d, ambhan is used as the restrictive adjective of the Upamāna āmapātra. In the Upamāna itself, the adjective āma corresponds to lobhātpratigraha in the Upameya. The conditioning of the word expressive of Upamana by the word ambhasis adopted by the author to make the Upamāna suitable in the context. it is dropped amapatra cannot serve as the Upamāna in the present case as amaiva by itself does not lead to destruction. Disagreement in gender exists between the Upameya lobhātpratigrahakīt vipra (masculine) and the Upamāna (ambhası) āmaḥātram (neuter).

(34) आर्थेक्प नर (and निभावन)

A man of impure (kalına) origin (μοπι), who belongs not to any caste (varnāpēta), (but whose character is) not known (avijāāta), who is like Anārya having the appearance of an Ārya, one may discover (mbhāvayst) by his acts (X-57)

Upameya avijilala

Upamāna: Āryarūba nara,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: mbhāvana,

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note:--In this Upamā, aryarūpa in the Upamāna corresponds. to avijāāta in the Upameya; nara is to be taken twice i.e. both in the Upameya and the Upamana. Here varnapsta and kalujayonija of the Upameya and anarya of the Upamana are predicative adjectives. Here was instead of directly coming after the Upamana nara comes after its predicative adjective arganipa.

- (35) रुका and दिजाति See No. 111 below
- (36) হল্ম (and ক্সমিবর্থন্ড)

As Indra sends copius rain during four months (caturo māsān), of the Rainy Season (vārṣikan) even so let the king, taking upon himself the indravrata i.e. the office of Indra, shower benefits on his kingdom (IX—304).

Upameya: prākaranska nṛpa,

Upamāna: Indra,

Sădhāraņa Dharma, abhivarşaņa,

Upamāvācaka, yathā—tathā,

Note:—Here vārṣikānśvaturo māsān is a restrictive attribute in the Upamāna-vākya and perhaps it suggests a corresponding restriction in the showering of gifts by the king only on appropriate occasions. For a similar adjective see aṣtau māsān in No. 28 above. The common property is expressed twice in keeping with the two sentences that go to form the Upamā. As the stanza seeks to give advice to the king (the Upameya) the common property going with him namely abhivarṣet is a potential form. This gives tise to disagreement in vidhi or mood.

'indrawatam' in d is an instance of Nidarsanā according to 'abhāvān vastusambandhah upamāparikalpakah' (Mammata) This makes the stanza an instance of Sankara of Upamā and Nidarsanā.

(37) क् and क

As the isu i.e. arrow, shot (viddhah) by (a hunter) who afterward hits (amuridhyatah) a wounded (deer) (viddham) in the wound i.e. khe (made by another) is shot in valu, even so that seed (bijam) sown on another's wife (paraparigraha), is quickly lost (to the sower) (IX—43).

Upameya: bija and paraparigraha

Upamāna: işu and kham

Sādhāraņa Dharma: naiyats Upamāvācaka: yathā—tathā

Note:-The Upama contains a double Upamana. In the Upameya-vākya the words corresponding to viddhah on the one hand (i.e. ksiptam), and to viddhamanuviddhyntali (i.e. ksiptamanuksipatah) on the other the Upamana-vakya, are employed even though they seem to be intended. So that the meaning seems to be that the bijakseps of a man upon another's wife which follows the bijaksepa of the legitimate husband is useless. The word kha in this verse evidently refers to the wound made by the dart on a mrga as is clear from 'salyavato mrgam' in verse 44 of d the same Adhyāya immediately below and The Upamāna isu is here corresponds to paraparigraha. restricted by the additional words 'nddhamanunddhyatah' and suggest a corresponding restriction in the Upameya (as is indicated above) Here the Sadharana Dharma is repeated twice in keeping with the two sentences that go to form the Upama. The repetition is exact.

इंरिस् and बस्तु and बीज see No. 151 below.

(39) धरक and इतिपाद

But when one among all the organs slips away (from control), thereby (man's) wisdom (prayid) slips away from nim, even as udaka 1 e water (flows) through the one (open) foot namely pāda of a (water-carrier's) skin i.e. drii (II--99)

Upameya: prajitā and indriya Upamāna: udaka and drinpāda Sādhāraņa Dharma: ksaralı

Upamāvācaka: wa

Note.-This is a double Upamana. Here the poet has conceived all indrigas as a group and he wants to say that the whole group suffers when one even of them misbehaves. Here Upameya is used in the instrumental (tena i.e. kṣaratā indriyeṇa) and Upamāna. is put in the ablative (drteh pādāt) as ksarati can go with either of these cases (tena or tasmat ksarati) This is exactly the opposite of enasah (Upameya) and tvacā (Upamāna) in No. 23 above. There is disagreement in gender between the Upameya praytia (feminine) and the corresponding Upamana udakam (neuter). The same is true of the Upameya undryam (neuter) and the corresponding Upamāna drtīpāda (masculine)

(40) उद्द i.e. मन्तु (and भदोषनाक्त्य) (X--103)

Upameya to i.e. Vipras mentioned in c

Upam na: ambu

Sādhāraņa Dharma: na doşo bhavatı

Upamāvācaka; sama

Note:-For the details of the Upamā see No. 4 above.

- (42) उदक i.e. सम्भस् and ब्रामिन्द् See No. 81 below.
- (43) उदक 1.e अन्यस् and तैलिन्द्र See No. 99 below.
- (44) डदक 1.e बारि and नर See No. 120 below.
- (45) क्यवास (and पुण्यावहत्य)

He who performs the vow (of studentship) shall constantly subsist on alms, (but) not eat the food of one (person) only (eka), the subsistence of a student on begged food is declared to be equal (in merit) to upavāsa i.e. fasting (II—188).

Upameya: bhasksena vrtts

Upamāna: upavāsa ·

Sādhāraņa Dharma: punyāvahatva (lupta)

Upamāvācaka sama

Note:—This is Arthi Samāsagā Dharmaluptā Upamā. It is Dharmaluptā because the dharma i.e. common property namely putyāvahatva is not expressed i.e. is lupta. In a work on Dharmašāstra, pāpāvahatva and putyāvahatva are expected to be supplied at proper places.

(46) उद् (and उत्पादकस्य प्रजामागित्वामाव) (IX-48).

Upameya: anyānganā

Upamāna, us īra (belonging to the others)

Sādhāraņa Dharma: notpādakah prajābhāgi

Upamāvācaka, yathā-tathā

Note -For the details of the Upama see No. 9 above.

(47) कपर and (शुभ) वीज

Where merit and wealth are not (obtained by teaching) nor (even) due (tadvidha lit. of that type) obedience in such (soil) i.e. to such a person, sacred knowledge must not be uttered just as good seed i.e. subham bijam (must) not (be thrown) on usara i.e. barren soil (II—112).

Upameya, mdyā and the pupil without dharmārtha or śuśrujā

Upamāna: šubham bija and ūṣāra Sādhārana Dharma na vaktavyā

Upamāvācaka: iva

Note: Here also a double Upamāna is present. The Sādhārana Dharma is here conceived as dropping, giving or employing. This can be expressed in two different ways according to the nature of the associate. In the case of Upamāna namely—subham bīja it becomes vaptavyam, in case of the Upameya namely indyā it is vaktavyā. The poet has chosen the latter instead of using the common expression such as dātavya. Even then the lingabheda would remain, which is due to the choice of a passive construction instead of the active one on the part of the poet. As it is, however, the Sādhārana Dharma is not really so, it only goes with the Upameya.

(48) क्यर 1 e इंस्पि and वच्च and जीव See No. 151 below

(49) बात and बातुलिक

As at the change of seasons (riuparyaye) each season i.e. riavah (lit. all seasons) verily of its own accord assumes its distinctive marks i.e. riulingas, even so corporeal beings (resume in new births) their (appointed) course of action (I—30)

Upameya: dehin and karmāni Upamāna: jiu and riulingāni Sādhāraņa Dharma: svāni svāni abhipadyanie

Upamāvācaka: yathā—tathā

Note —This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here risparyaye is a restrictive adjective of the Upamāna; it suggests a corresponding attribute i.e. systyantare in the Upameya. Cf. Rāghavānanda's explanation—'taihā svasvakarmāni dehinah systymantare prapadyante'.

(50) স্মন্তুলিস and স্মন্ত see No. 49 above

(53) औरस (प्रत्र) (and धनइरण)

i.c. aurasah, for that seed and the produce belong according to the law to the owner of the soil (IX-145)

Upameya: niyuktäyäm jäla putra,

Upamāna: aurasa,

Sadharano Dharma (dhanom) harei,

Upamāvācaka yathā

Note Here tatha which should have been mentioned with the Upameya is dropped owing to the inversion of the usual order of the Upamana and the Upameya. For such an omission of tatha see Nos 67 & 218 below

(54) कहा and निर्दाष्ट with भाग्य

As the weeder i.e. nurdair plucks up the weeds i.e. kakya and preserves the corn i.e. dhanya, even so let the king protect his kingdom and destroy his opponents (VII -110).

Upameya nrpa, paripanthin and rastra

Upamāna, nirdātr, kakşa and dhānya Sādhārana Dharma uddhitya raksaņam

Upamāvācaka: yaiha-taihā.

Note.—In the Upamāna kakṣaṣyoddharaṇam precedes dhānyaṣya rakṣaṇam, while in the Upameya the hanana of paripanthinah succeeds or follows the rakṣaṇa of rāṣṭra. Besides the destruction of kakṣa and the paripanthin is expressed by means of two synonymous words uddharati and hanyāt while the protection is mentioned by the same root rakṣa. In the Upamāna, kakṣam which corresponds to paripanthinah differs from the latter both in point of number and gender. As the stanza seeks to give advice to the King, the common properties, namely rakṣat and hanyāt that go with him are put in potential while the words corresponding to these in the Upamāna-vākya namely uddharati and rakṣati are in the present tense. Hence the vidhābada.

(55) कान्ड (and चिती उत्सर्जन)

Leaving the dead body on the ground like kāṣṭha i.e. a log of wood, or loṣṭa, i.e. a cold of earth, the relatives depart with averted faces, but spiritual merit i.e. (Dharma) follows him (i.e. the soul). (IV—241)

Upameya: wrta świra

Upoměna: (4) kastha and (11) losta

Sădhāraņa Dharma kşitau utsarjanam

Upamāvācaka: sama

Note.—This is Mālopamā as kāṣṭha and loṣṭa . e. two are given as Upamānas for the Upameya mṛṭa sarīra.

Also see No. 175 A below.

(56) কুন and আর

His enemy must not know his weakness, but he must know the weaknesses of his enemy, as the kūrma or tortoise (hides its aṅgām) i e. limbs, even so let him secure (gūhat) the members i.e. aṅgas (of his government against treachery), let him protect his own weak points (VII—105)

Upameya prākaraņika rājan and anga

Upamāna: kūrma and anga

Sādhāraņa Dharma, gūhanam

Upamāvācaka: 10a

Note: Here there is Slesa in the Upamāna namely anga. When construed with the Upameya namely $r\bar{a}jan$, it refers to the seven members of his i.e. a king's government and with Upamāna namely $k\bar{u}rma$ it refers to its limbs. Hence $ang\bar{a}m$ is mentioned only once.

(57) (नदी-) कुल and कुछ

He who leaves his body (deha), (be it by necessity) as a prhsa i.e. tree (does) the nadi-kūla i.e. the river-bank (or) (freely) like a sakum i.e. bird (that) quits a mhsa i.e. tree is freed from grāha i.e. (dreadful) shark (i.e. misery of this world) (VI—78).

Upameya prākaraņika yati and his deha

Upamāna (1) vrkṣa and (nadī-)kūla and (ii) šakum and vṛkṣa

Sādhāraņa Dharma: tyāga (iyajan)

Upamavacaka yathā-tathā in both (1) and (11)

Note.—The stanza gives two pairs of double Upamānas. Once the prākarņka yati and his deha are compared with viksa and (nādi-)kūla and secondly with sakuni and vikṣa. Here tyāga which is the Sādhāraṇa Dharma is compulsory in the first case and voluntary in the latter. As these Upamās are expressed with two independent sentences, the Upamāvācaka yathā is mentioned.

twice. The two pairs of Upamānas make the stanza an instance of Mālopamā.

"krechrāt grāhāt' in d stands for excessive troubles in life te sansārakaṣṭa. This is Atīsayokti of the first kind which is defined by Mammaṭa as 'nīgīryādhyavasānam tu prakrtasya parēņa yat'

The stanza is, in fact, an instance of Samsreti of Mālopamā and Atršayokti.

(58) कृत्या (and समन्तदः विनाश)

The houses on which female relations (jāmejah) not being duly honoured, pronounce a curse, perish completely like those that are destroyed by kṛṭṇā i.e. magic (III—58).

Upameya: jāmišapiāni gehām Upamāna: krivāhatāmi gehāmi

Sādhāraņa Dharma: samantatah muasyanti

Upamāvācaka: 1va

Note.—Ultimately jāmišāpa is compared with $k/ty\bar{a}$ in point of effectiveness. Upamāvācaka iva has come after the adjective of the Upamāna ($geh\bar{a}m$), which is to be supplied from the first half of the stanza.

(59) कुग्गवलीन् see No. 3 above

Upamāna: Guru,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note —Here also the Upamā is Śrautī Taddhītagā in keeping with 'tatra tasyesa'. See No. 62 above. Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna. For a similar comparison see No. 60 above as well as Nos 66, 91 and 114 below

(64) शुरू (and मानागृहेन्द्र)

Sadharana Dharma vrthmacaret,

Upamāvācaka vat,

Note: This is a Śrauti Taddhitagā Upamā formed according to the Sūtra 'tatra tasyeva'. See Nos. 62 and 63 above. Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna. For such a comparison see Nos. 60 and 63 above as well Nos. 91 and 114 below.

(67) गुरु (and नित्यसेवन)

That (king) who will coerce i.e. keep under check both his (disloyal) subjects and the army of the foe, let him ever serve with every effort like a Guru or the teacher (VII 175)

Upameya bali nrpa from verse 174,

Upamāna: Guru,

Sadharana Dharma' netyam upaseveta,

Upamēvācaka: yathā,

Note:—Tathā, which should have been mentioned with the Upameya is dropped due to the inversion of the usual order of the Upamana and the Upameya. For a similar omission of tathā see No. 53 above as well as Nos. 123 and 218 below

(68) মুক (and বৃদ্ধি)

But when the purpose of the appointment to (cohabit with) (niyogāriha) the widow has been attained in accordance with, the law, those two shall behave towards each other like guru i.e., a father (and smyā i e daughter-in-law) (IX—62)

Upameya vidhavāyām niyuktah,

Upamāna guru,

Sādhāraņa Dhorma, vrtts (i.e. ācaraņa),

Upamāvācaka vat,

Note — The expression 'snuṣāvat' in c contains another Upamā which is a complement of this Upamā, for which see No. 224 below

(69) गुस्तल्प see No. 71 below.

(70) गुरुपतनी (and सम्पूज्यस्व)

Amaternal aunt, the wife of a maternal uncle, a mother-in-law and a paterna, aunt must be honoured tike gurupatni i.e. the wife of one's teacher, they are equal to gurubhāryā i.e. the wife of one's teacher (II--131).

Upameyas mātrsvasā, mātulānī, svasrū and pitrsvasā,

Upamāna· gurupatnī in c and gurubhāryā in d,

Sādhārana Dharma' sampūyyatva in the Upamā in c and ādaraniyatva (lupta) in the Upamā in d,

Upamāvācaka val in the former and sama in the latter,

Note—Upamā in c where gurupaini is the Upamāna is rather the result of the Upamā in d where gurubhāryā is the Upamāna. The latter, however, is Ārthi Vākyagā Dharmaluptā. It is Dharmaluptā as there the dharma namely ādaraņiyaiva is not expressly stated (i.e. is to be understood)—Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna—For such a comparison see Nos. 60, 63 & 66 above.

(71) गुरुपस्नी 1.c. गुरुतस्य (and पापाबहुत्त्व)

Carnal intercourse (relahseka) with sisters by the same mother, with (unmarried) maidens, with females of lowest castes, with wives of a friend or of a son, they declare to be equal to gurutalpaile violation of a Garu's bed (XI -58).

Upameya: retahseka,

Upamāna: gurutalpa,

Sädhāraņa Dharma pāpāvahatva (lupta),

Upamāvācaka sama,

Note. This is Ārthi Samāsagā Dharmaluptā Upamā. It is Dharmaluptā because the common property namely pāpāvahatva is not expressed. In a work on Dharmaśāstra, pāpāvahatva and punyāvahatva are not expected to be expressed.

(72) गुरुवावाँ (and बादरावीवत्व, See No. 70 above.

(73) मो (and उत्पादकस्य प्रजामागित्वामान) IX---48.

Upameya: anyānganā,

Upamāna. gauh (belonging to others),

Sādhārana Dharma yathā -tathā,

Note:- For the details of the Upama see No. 9 above.

(74) भो (cow) (and सबक्ततनामान)

Unrighteousness (adharma), practised in this world, does not at once produce its fruit, like gauh i.e. a cow (or the earth), but advancing slowly, it cuts off the roots of him who committed it (IV—172).

Upameya, adharma,

Upamāna gauh,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, na sadyah phalats,

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note Here gauh, the Upamāna may either be taken to mean a cow or the earth. Neither of these are able to yield their expected fruit within a short time. The cow yields her expected reward i.e. milk only after she brings forth a calf. Similarly the earth requires a good deal of care and work after the seed is sown into it.

Kulhūka, however, takes this simile as an instance of Vaidharmyena Upamā because he thinks that gauh means either a milch cow or a full-grown bull.

(75) (भन्धा) गो (and पक्तवेश्वस्थिति),

Sambhojanī Dakṣṇṇā i.e. a gift of food consumed (with friends and relatives) by twice-born men (of course for making friendships), is said to be one which goes to the Piśācas, it remains (āste) in this (world) (i.e. tha) alone (wa) like andhā gauḥ i.e. a blind cow in one stable (veśman) (III—141).

Upameya. Sambhojarā Daksuņā,

Upamāna: andhā gauḥ, ,

Sādhāraņa Dharma· ekavesman: 1.e. (ekatra eva) āste,

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note:—Here the Sädhärana dharma is 'ekapawäste' n.e. 'remains confined to one place' n.e. 'does not move to other places.' This is expressed by thawa (i.e. in this world alone, thus excluding swaga for which dakunā is generally given) in the Upameya and by ekaveşman: in the Upamāna. Here the Upamāna is restricted by an adjective namely andhā. The ultimate intention of the poet is to compare the sambhojanīwa with andhawa.

(76) (पक्क) भो (and सीदन)

The kingdom of that monarch, who looks on (pasyatah) while a Sudra settles the law, will sink (low), like gauh i.e. cow in a morass i.e. panka (VIII—21).

Upameya rāştra,

Upamāna panke gauh,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: sīdatı,

Upamāvācaka, sva,

Note:—Here paiks is the restrictive or conditioning attribute of the Upamāna gauh which makes it correspond with the Upameya. From the word paiyatah it seems that the poet has at the back of his mind the comparison of the king with a cow-boy who hesplessly looks at the calamity

(77) 前 and 前 II-158

Upameya: ança vipra and śrautasmārta karma (lupta)

Upamāna: gauh and gauh,

Sādhāraņa Dharma ophalatva,

Upamāvācaka: yethā—tethā,

Note: -For the details of the Upamā see No. 10 above.

(78) को and पह

Hence an ignorant (man) should be afraid of accepting any pratigraha i.e. presents; for by reason of a very small (gift) even, a fool sinks (into hell) as a gauh i.e. cow in panka i.e. a morass. (IV—191).

Upameya amdvān and his svalpaka protigraha,

Upamāna: gauh and panka,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: sīdatī,

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note.—This Upamā contains a double Upamāna Here svalpaka pratigraha corresponds to panka and is the cause of sīdana like the latter. The correspondence in case between panka and svalpaka pratigraha could not be maintained owing to the difference between the two meanings, primary and secondary of the word sīdati. The secondary meaning of sīdati namely 'failure' requires the instrumental case while the primary sense namely 'sinking' requires the locative,

(79) यो (earth) (and सद:फलनासाव) IV-172.

Upameya: adharma,

Upamāna: gauh (earth),

Sādhāraņa Dharma na sadyaļi phalats,

Upamävācaka: iva,

Note:—The Upamā is based on the interpretation put on the word gauh alternatively understood in the sense of earth. For the Upamā see No. 74 above.

(80) রা and নালস

And in each town let him appoint one sarvārthamitaka i.e. superintendent of all affairs, elevated in rank (uccaih sthāna or sthiti), formidabie (ghararūpa) resembling a planet i.e. graha among stars i.e. nakṣatras (VII—121)

Upameya sarvärthacintaka and te (sarve) 1.e his subordinates,

Upamāna: graha and naksatra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma uccash sthits and ghorarupa,

Upamaāvācaka- wa,

Note:—The Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here tesām (referring to the subordinate officers) is to be supplied from the previous stanza. Here the officer i.e. the sarvārthacintaka is compared with graha and his subordinates who are to be understood by the word tesām supplied from the previous stanza, with nakṣatras The Upamāna nakṣatrāns (neuter) differs from the corresponding Upameya i.e. te sarve (masculme) in point of gender. This discrepancy i.e the use of neuter gender in the Upamāna, however, seems to be intentional and is meant to convey the relative unimportance of the subordinates.

(81) भूतरिन्दु and सम्मस्

But the fame of the king who acts in a contrary way or manner and who does not subdue himself, diminishes in extent (sanksipyate) among men like ghrtabindu i.e. a drop of clarified butter in ambhas i.e. eater (VII—34).

Upameya: nrpateh yasas and loka, Upamena: ghrtabindu and ambhas, Sedherana Dharma: sanksipyate, Upamāvācāka: iva,

Note.—Here a double Upamāna is present. There is disagreement in respect of gender between both the Upameyas and their corresponding Upamānas.

(82) कह (and निरवसंसारक)

This one pervades all created beings in the five forms, and constantly makes them, by means of both, growth and decay, revolve like sakra i.e. the wheels (of a chariot) (XII—I24).

Upameya: bhūtāni,

Upamāna: cakra,

Sādhārana Dharma: nityam sainsārayati,

Upamāvācaka: sat,

Note.—There is disagreement in respect of number between the Upameya namely bhūtām (plural) and the Upāmana namely cakram (singular).

(83) चन्द्र and मानव

He is a king, taking upon himself the candrawrata i.e. the office of the Moon (lit. being a cândrawratika), in whom (i.e. at whose appearance) his subjects rejoice as men i.e. mānavāh feel on seeing the paripūrņa candra i.e. the full moon (IX -309)

Upameya- nipa and prakrtayah,

Upamāna: candra and mānavāḥ,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: hṛṣyantı,

Upamāvācaka: yathā—tathā,

Note —The Upamā contains a double Upamāna. The expression candram dritus in the Upamāna-vākya corresponds to yasmin in the Upameya-vākya, so that yasmin is equivalent to yam dritus. This gives rise to the irregularity namely the Upamāna candra being put in the accusative case and the Upameya yasmin (referring to nipa in d) in the locative.

'cāndravratīka' in d is an instance of Nidaršanā. This makes the stanza an example of Sankara of Upamā and Nidaršanā.

(84) चमस (and शीच)

His vessels shall not be made of metal, they shall be free from fractures, it is ordained that they shall be cleansed with water, like (the cups called) Comasa, at a sacrifice (VI—53). Upameya: ataıjasani and nirorayanı patram,

Upamānā: .camasa,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, adbhih śaucam,

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note.—There is disagreement in point of gender between the Upameya pāirāņi which is neuter while the Upamāna camasānām is masculine.

(85) अवस्ता See No. 155 below

(86) रैस (and हुद्धि)

Skins and (objects) made of split bamboo must be cleansed like catlo i.e. clothes, (vegetable, roots and fruit like dhānya i.e. grain) (IV—I19).

Upameya: carman and vaidala,

Upamāna: carla,

Sādhārapa Dharma: śuddhi,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note:—Here two Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna. For a similar comparison see No. 90 below

For another Upama contained in cd, see No. 114 below.

(87) चौर (and किल्कि)

If a man is killed (due to mattention and the tike on the part of the prajaka i.e. driver), his (i.e. prajaka's) guilt (killing) will be at once the same as (that of) a causa i.e. a thief, for large animals such as cows, elephants, camels or horses, half of that (VIII—296).

Upameya: prājaka from verse 294,

Upamāna: caura,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, kilbişam bhavet,

Upamāvācaka: vat.

(88) और (and दरह)

In keeping with this rule, the manager who sells without (the consent of) the owner unknowingly or knowingly deserves punishment similar to that of caura i.e. a thief (VIII---197-200).

Upameya, šāstā,

Upamāna, caura,

Sådhävana Dharma: dandamarhan,

Upomāvācaka: vat,

Note:—This Śloka is included as it is accepted by Sarvaj-ñanārāyaṇa, Nandana and Rāmacandra. Rāmacandra's commentary runs as follows: anena māhinā asvāmunkrayam kurvanna-jūānajāānapūrvakam vā śāstā cauravadvadhamarhati

(89) चौर (and शास्पल ा दाप्पल)

He who does not return a deposit and he who demands what he never bailed shall both be putushed like a caura i.e. thief, or be compelled to pay a fine equal (to the value of the object or claimed article) (VIII -191).

Upameya tāvubhau 1.c. miksepārpaystā and amksepya yācelā,

Upamāna; caura,

Sādhārana Dharma šāsyatva or dāþyatva,

Upamāvācaka: vat.

(90) चौर (and शास्यत्व)

Those who are appointed to guard provinces and his vassals, who have been ordered (to help), he shall speedily punish like caura i.e. thieves, (if they remain) inactive in attacks (by robbers) (IX—272).

Upameya, rakṣādhikṛta (persons, and sāmanta,

Upamāna: сашта,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: šīsyāt,

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note.—Here two Upameyas are compared with one Upamāna. For a similar comparison see No. 86 above.

(91) चौर (and इनन)

Those who give (to thieves) fire, food, arms or shelter, and receivers of stolen goods, the ruler shall punish like causa i.e. thieves (IX—278).

Upameya. agnīda, bhaktada, šastrāvakāšada and (moṣasya):
sainnīdhātr.

Upamāna: caura,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: hanyāt,

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note:—Here also many Upameyas are compared with one-Upamana.

For a similar comparison see Nos. 60, 63, 66 above as well? as No. 114 below.

(92) चौर ne स्तेन (and दोषभावत्व)

A Brāhmana, seeking to obtain property from (a man) who took what was not given to him either by sacrificing from him or by teaching him, is even like a stena i.e. thief (VIII-340).

Upameya, saḥ ı e. lıpsāvān Brāhmaņa

Upamāna: stena,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: doṣabhāktva (lupta),

Upamäväcaka: yalhä-talhä,

Note:—Here it is possible that the Sādhāraṇa Dharma may be understood from the word adattādāyi i.e. caura which can be supplied from the word adattādāymah in the first half. But perhaps it is better to supply the word doşabhāk as the Sādhāraṇa Dharma which is to be considered as lupta. In view of this the Upamā is Śrautī Vākyagā Dharmaluptā. It is Dharmaluptā, as the Dharma i.e. the common property namely doṣabhāktoa is not expressed.

(93) ভৱ (and জাৰ্যন্ত্ৰ)

Unless one be asked, one must not explain (anything) to anybody, nor (must one answer) a person who asks improperly, let a wise man, though he knows (the answer), behave among men like a jada i.e. an idiot (II 110).

Upameya. medhāvî,

Upomāna: jada,

Sādhāraņa Dharma ācaret,

Upamāvācaka vat.

(94) जन्तु and बायु

As all living creatures i.e. jantavah subsist by receiving support from air i.e. vāju, even so (the members of) all orders (āšramāh) subsist by receiving support from the householder (III—77).

Upameya: āśramāh and grhastha,

Upamāna: jantavah and vāyu,

Sādhāraņa Dharma samāşruya vartante,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note. - This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. As the simile is expressed with the help of two independent sentences, the common property namely 'sandsrilya variante' is expressed twice. The repetition is exact.

(95) ज्वलन See No. 4 above.

(96) (उदके) तरम् and (भौपल) एकच See No. 143 below...

(97) तृखाम्नि (and समस)

As tyndgm i.e. a fire of dry grass is (unable to consume rithe offerings and is quickly) extinguished even so (is it with) an unlearned Brāhmaņa, Sacrificia, food (havya) must not be given to him, never is (anything) offered in ashes (bhasmam) (III—168).

Upameya. anadhiyana Brahmana,

. Upamāna: trņāgni,

Sādhāreņa Dharma: šāmyatı,

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note —Corresponding to the restricting adjective anadhiyana in the Upameya we have trna meaning trnakrta in the Upamana trnagni. In cd, we have a Drstanta based on Vaidharmya, where the anadhiyana Brahmana is compared with bhasman and the gift of a havya to him is compared with havana in bhasman.

The stanza thus becomes an instance of Samsṛṣṭi of Upamā and Dṛṣṭānta.

(98) तेजस् and विह्न and एवस् see No. 6 above.

(99) हैलनिन्द्र and सम्मस्

The fame of a king who behaves thus, even though he subsists by gleaning, is spread in the world like a tailabindu i.e. a drop of oil in ambhas i.e. water (VII—83)

Upameya, nepateh yasas and loka,

Upamāna: tastabandu and ambhas,

Sādhāraņa Dharma vistīryate,

Upamāvācaka: wa.

Note —This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. There is disagreement in point of gender between the Upameya yatah (neuter) and the Upamāna tailabinduh (masculine), as well as the Upameya loka (masculine) and the Upamāna ambhas (neuter)

(100) तोय and भाहित्य and रश्मिन् and समुद्र see No. 28

(101) दिदयर (and सतिरिक्तवामाव)

Yet in a kingdom (rāpa) containing seven constituent parts saptānga), which is upheld like tridanda i.e. the triple staff (of an ascetic), there is no (single part more important (than the others), by reason of the importance of the qualities of each for the others (IX—296)

Upameya: saptānga rājya,

Upamāna: tridaņķa,

Sådhärana Dharma anyonyagunavarsesyänna kväcidatiricyate,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note: Here the adjective saptānga of the rājya has its correspondence in the adjective in of the tridanda. There is disagreement in respect of gender between the Upameya rājya (which is neuter) and the Upamāna tridanda (which is masculine).

(102) त्रिवेदाध्ययन (and स्वर्गसाधन)

As is trivedādhyayana i.e. the study of the three Vedas, so is Dharmatāstra. (Hence) it should be regularly (myatam) studied by a Brāhmaṇa who desires to obtain the heavenly world, (I—(11)—105—106).

Upameya Dharmasāstra,

Upamāna trīvedādhyayana,

Sădhāraņa Dharma: svargasādhana (lupta),

Upamāvātaka: yathā-tathā,

Note—Here the Upameya that is mentioned, is only Dharmaśāstra, but as is clear from the Upamāna trivedādhyayana, its adhyayana is meant. The Upamā is Śrautī Vākyagā Dharmaluptā. It is Dharmaluptā because the Dharma namely svargasādhana is not expressed but suggested by the adjective used in case of the Brāhmana viz. "svargamichatā". The Upamā is included here as the stanza is commented by the commentator Rāmacandra.

- (103) स्वच and मा€ see Nos. 23 and 24 above.
- (104) दान and बह see No. 10 above.
- (105) दाह (and भस्मीभवन)

But as ignorant (householder) who accepts gold, land, a horse, a cow, food, a dress, sesamum grains, (or) clarified butter is reduced to ashes like dāru i e (a piece of) wood (IV—188).

Upameya: avidvān

Upamānā: dāru,

Sādhāraņa Dharma bhasmibhavati,

Upamāvācaka: vai-

(106) दासी (and उत्पादनस्य प्रजामागित्वामान) IX 48.

Upameya, anyanganas,

Upamāna: dāsts,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, notpādakah prajābhāgī,

Upamāvācaka: nathā-tathā,

Note For the details of the Upama see No. 9 above.

(107) हतिपाद and उदक see No. 19 above.

'108) देव (and मोद)

He who neglects not these three, (even after he has become) a householder, will conquer the three worlds and radiant in body, he will enjoy bliss in heaven like deve i.e. God (II—232).

Upameya: apramādyan grhī,

Upāmāna: deva,

Sādhāraņa Dharma divs modate,

Upamāvācaka, vat

(109) देश (and उपचर्यत्स)

Though destitute of virtue or seeking pleasure (elsewhere) or devoid of (good) qualities, (yet) a husband must be constantly worshipped as deva or a god by a faithful wife (V—154).

Upameya: pati,

Upamāna deva,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: upacaryah,

Upamāvācaka: vat-

(110) gr See No. 193 below as well as No. 7 above.

(111) हिजाति and एव्या

For by purishing the wicked and by favouring the virtuous, kings are constantly sanctified, just as dvijātajah i.e. twice-born men by upāt i.e. sacrifices (VIII—311)

Upameya: nrpa and pāpa-nigraha as well as sādhu-sangraha,

Upamāna: dvijāti and 13yā,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: satatom pūyante

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note:—This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here tyrābhih (plural) is the Upamāna for pāpānām nigraha and sādhūnām sangraha. Hence the disagreement in respect of number. There is also disagreement in respect of gender between them as the former is feminine while the latter namely pāpanigraha as welk as sādhusangraha are masculine.

(112) भरा (and भूतधारख)

Just as dharā i.e. the Earth supports all created beings equally, thus is the pārthina prata i.e. the vow of the Earth—observed by (a king) who supports all creatures (IX—311).

Upameya, prākaranska rājan,

Upamāna: dharā,

Sādhāraņa Dharma bhūtānām dhāraņam,

Upamāvācaka: tathā,

Note—Here dharā the Upamāna is put in the nominative while being influenced by the words pārihwam viatam in d, the Upamāna rājan which is to be supplied, is put in the gentive case as shown by bibhratah. Here bibhratah is to be taken as the short form of the expression 'yah (rājā) bibhrati tasya'. The construction has thus become anakouthic

'pārthwam wratam' in d is an instance if Nidaršanā. The stanza, therefore, becomes an instance of Sankara of Upamā and Nidaršanā

(113) शञ्च and मल

For as the malas i.e impurities of dhātus i.e metallic ores, melted in the blast (of a furnace) (dhmāyamāna), are consumed, even so are the taints of the organs are destroyed through the suppression of the breath (VI—71)

Upameya. indriya and doşa,

Upamāna: dhātu and mala,

Sādhāraņa Dharma· dahyante,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note The Upamā contains a double Upamāna Correspondence between dhmāyamāna (-tos) and prānaya nigraha seems to be intended by the poet. There is disagreement in point of gender between the Upameya indriyam (which is neuter) and the Upamāna dhātu (which is masculine)

(?14) খান্য (and মুক্তি)

(Skins and (objects) made of split cane must be cleansed like calla i.e. clothes), vegetables, roots and fruit like dhānya i.e. grain (V—119).

Upameya: śāka, māla and phala,

Upamāna: dhānya,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: śuddhi,

Upamāvācaka, vat,

Note:—Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna. For a similar comparison see Nos. 60, 63, 66 and 91 above.

For another Upamā contained in ab, see No. 86 above.

(115) भान्य and निर्दोह with क्य see No. 54 above

(116) नचन and बह see No. 80 above.

(117) नदी i.e. निम्नण and समुद्र see No. 212 below

(118) नदी i.e. सिन्धु and समुद्र see No. 213 below

(118A) नदी-कृल and वृद्ध see No 57 above.

(119) नदीनद and सागर

As nadinadah i.e. all rivers, both great and small, find a resting place in sagara i.e. the ocean, even so men of all orders find protection with householders (VI -90).

Upameya, āšramın and grhastha, Ubamāna: nadinada and sāgara,

Sādhārana Dharma samsthitim yanti,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Mote: This Upama contains a double Upamana. The expression nadinada is here understood as a Samahara. As the Upama, here, is expressed with the help of two independent sentences, the common property is expressed with the help of the identical words, viz. samsthitm yanti.

(.19A) आर्थे रूप नर् (and निभावन) see No. 34 above.

(120) (सनित्रेष खनन्) नर and बारि

As the nara i.e. man who digs (i.e khanan) with a khanitra i.e a spade (into the ground) obtains vari i.e water, even so an obedient (śwśrwu) pupil, obtains the knowledge which lies (hidden) in his teacher (II—218).

Upameya, suśrūsu (brahmacāri) and gurugatā vidyā,

Upamāna khandreņa khanan nara and vārī, Sādhārana Dharma adhīgacchatī,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note—Here also a double Upamāna is present. The adjective khanstrona khanan in the Upamāna-vākya, corresponds to the adjective susrāsu in the Upameya-vākya, but the substantive mamely brahmacārī in the Upamāna-vākya which is in correspondence with nara in the Upamāna-vākya is to be supplied from the context. Correspondence between khanitra and susrāsa (or savā) is surely intended. Simitarly the adjective prihvīgatam qualifying vāri in the Upamāna-vākya, which corresponds to gurugatā of indyā in the Upamēya-vākya is also not expressed. Correspondence between guru and prihvī is certainly intended. There is also disagreement in point of gender between the Upamēya andyā (which is feminine) and the Upamāna vārz (which is neuter). The Sādhārana Dharma namely adhīgacīshāti is exactly repeated.

- (121) निम्तग and समुद्र see No. 212 below.
- (122) निर्दात and कन with भान्य see No. 54 above.
- (123) निर्देश and मृतक

Let him (yat) not desire to die, let him not desire to hve, let him wait for (his appointed) time (kāla), as a bhrtaka lie. a servant (waits) for niidesa i.e. the payment of his wages (VI—45).

Upameya prākaramka yats and kāla.

Upamēna, bhṛtaka and nirdesa,

Sādhāraņa Dhorma: pratīkseta,

Upamāvātaka yathā,

Note:—The Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here tathā which should have come with the Upameya is dropped owing to the inversion of the usual order. For the dropping of tathā see Nos. 53, 67 above as well as Nos. 152 and 217 below

- (124) पश्च and आकारा see No. 25 above.
- (125) पद्भ and नो see No 78 above.
- (126) (इति-) पाद and उदक see No. 39 above.
- (127) पानक see No. 5 above.
- (128) पिस् (and वपजीव्यस्व)

(Or) the eldest alone may take the whole paternal estate, the others shall live under him just as (they lived) under their pitā i.e. father (IX—105).

Upameya: sah i.e. jyeştha,

Upamāna, pitā,

Sādhārana Dharma upajīvyatva,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā.

(129). पितृ (and वित्ते)

Let him (the king) cause the annual revenue in his kingdom to be collected by trusty (officials) (āpta), let him obey the sacred law (āmnāya) in (his transactions with) the people, and behave like pitr i.e. a father towards all men (VII—80).

Upameya: rājan from V 79,

Upamāna: pitr,

Bādhāraņa Dharma: varteta,

Upamāvācaka, vat.

(190) पिसु (and ब्रि)

If the eldest brother behaves as an eldest brother (ought to do), he (must be treated) like (mātā i e. a mother) and like pitā i.e. a father, (but if he behaves in a manner unworthy of an eldest brother, he should yet be honoured like a bandhu i e. kinsman) (IX—110).

Upameya: jyeşthavrtti yeştha,

Upamāna pitr,

Sādhāraņa Dharma vrtts (lupta),

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note This is Śrautī Samāsagā Dharmaluptā Upamā It is Dharmaluptā because the Dharma i.e. the common property namely vitti (treatment) is not expressed.

The Upamă in măteva (see No. 164 below) makes the first line an instance of Mālopamā while sampuyastu bandhuvat (see No. 146 below) in d contains another Upamă.

(131) फिनु and भौरस पुत्र

Having ascertained his learning in the Veda and (the purity of) his conduct, the king shall provide for him means of subsistence in accordance with the sacred law and shall protect him in every way, as a pitā i.e. father (protects) the aurasa putra i.e. lawful son i.e. born of his self (VII—135).

Upameya: rājan and trotriya from V 133 & 134,

Upamāna: pitr and aurasa putra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: sarvataļi samraksaņa,

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note.—The Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here the second Upamāna namely putra is conditioned by the word aurasam in order to support the sarvatah samrakṣaṇam which is the Sādhāraṇa Dharma.

(132) चित्र and प्रत

As a pitā i.e. father (supports) his putrāh i.e. sons, so let the eldest support his younger brothers, and let them also in accordance with the law (dharmatah) behave towards their eldest brother as putrāh i.e. sons (behave towards him their father) (IX—108).

Upameya. yaştha and yaviyan bhratt,

Upamāna: pur and putra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: pāloyet,

Upamāvātaka: wa,

Note —Here also a double Úpamána is present.

The word 'putravat' in contains another Upamā for which see No. 136 below.

(133) पिशाच (and मांसाशन)

He, who, disregarding the rule (given above) does not eat meat like a pilacs, becomes dear to men and will not be tormented by diseases (V—50)

Upameya: präkaranska yah,

Upamāna: priāca,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note:—This is Upamā, based on Vaidharmya as māmsāšana is undertaken by the pisāca (i.e. the Upamāna), while a person (i.e. the Upameya) not eating it, is praised in the verse.

(134) प्रशिका and बल्मीक

Giving no pain to any creature, let him (grhastha from the context) slowly accumulate spiritual merit (dharma) for the sake (of acquiring) a companion to the next world, just as puttikāh i.e. the white ants (gradually raise their) valmīk s i.e. ant-hill (IV—238)

Upameya Prākoraņka (grhastha) and dharma,

Upamāna: putikā and valmika,

Sādhāraņa Dharma šanaiķ sameinuyāt,

Upamāvācaka, 10a,

Note—The simile contains a double Upamāna. There is disagreement in respect of number and gender between the Upamāna putikāh (which is plural & feminine) and the Upameya prākaraņika grhastha (which is singular and masculine).

(135) पुत्र (and धनस्वीकारयोग्यस्व)

(As son is even as good as oneself), (such) a daughter is equal to a putra i.e. son; how can another (heir) take the estate (dhana) white such (an appointed daughter who is even) oneself lives (IX-130)

Upameya: duhitā,

Upamāna putra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma. dhanasvikārayogyatva (lupta),

Upamāvācaka: sama,

Note.—There is disagreement in point of gender between the Upamāna putra and Upameya duhitā. The Upamā is Ārthī Vākyagā Dharmaluptā. It is Dharmaluptā because the Sādhārana Dharma namely dhanasvīkārayogyatva is not expressed. In fact mere Upamā is not intended here. A representative i.e. pratimāni rather than a standard of comparison i.e. Upamāna is sought to be conveyed by the word sama.

For the Upama contained in a, see No. 26 above.

(136) বুদ (and ৰ্বি)

(As a pitā i.e. father (supports) his putras i.e. sons, so let the eldest (pestha) support his younger brothers and) let them also in accordance with law behave towards their eldest brother as putras i.e. sons) behave towards their father) (LX—108).

Upameya: yaviyan bhraty,

Upamāna: putra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: varteron,

Upamäväcaka: vat,

Note: - For the Upama contained in a, see No 132 above.

(197) সুস and দিবু see No. 132 above

प्रेपच and अप्रपत्न see No 12 above. (138)

(139) दौत्र (and सन्तारण)

Between pautra 1 e. a son's son and dauhitra i.e. the son of a daughter there exists in this world no difference, for even the son of a daughter saves him (who has no sons) in the next world like paulra i.e. a son's son (IX-139).

Upameya: dauhitra,

Upamāna · pautra.

Sādhārana Dharma' amuira santāraņa,

Upāmāvācaka vat

(140) प्रास्तिन, and सरीरक्षेय

As the lives of prants i.e. living creatures are destroyed by Sarirakarşana i.e. tormenting their bodies even so the lives of kings are destroyed by rastrakarsana i.e. oppressing their kingdoms (VII-112).

Upameya rājan and rāstrakarsaņa,

Upamāna prāņin and šarīrakarsaņa,

Sādhāraņa Dharma prāņāh kşiyante,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note: -This Upama contains a double Upamana. As the Upamă is expressed with the help of two independent sentences, the words expressive of the common property namely pranah ksiyante are exactly repeated in both the sentences.

(141) भित्रदेश्यो and यम see No. 178 below.

(142) देश (and पर्यसन)

(In case of such a patita i.e. outcaste (XI-182), A female slave shall upset (paryaspet) with her foot a pot filled with water, in case of a preta i.e. a dead person, (his Sapindas) as well as the Samānodakas shall be impure for a day and night (XI-183).

Upameya, patita from verse 182,

Upamāna: pretu,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, ghaļasya paryasana,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note:-The idea in the verse is that a patita is to be treated like a preta i.e. dead person; paryasana implying a total severence of his from all relations. Thus ghalasya paryasana stands for a complete break of association with a patita.

(143) (कौएल) प्लब and (ध्दके) तरन्

As he who (attempts to) cross water i.e. (udake) taran in an (aupala) plava i.e. a boat of stone sinks (to the bottom) even so do the ignorant donor and the receiver (dātr and pratīcehaka) sink low (IV—194).

Upameya datr (giver) and praticehaka (receiver),

Upamana udake) taran and (aupala) plava,

Sādhāraņa Dharma nimazjona,

Upamāvācaka, yathā-tathā,

Note:—This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here dātrpratīcehakau is the Upameya and udake taran and aupaua plava is the double Upamāna. Out of these, dātā corresponds to udake taran and the pratīcehaka with aupala plava. In the Upamāna, one of them is mentioned in the instrumental while the other is in the nominative. On the other hand, in the Upameya, both are put in the nominative (in a compound). In the Upamāna, instrumental is used to show the karanatva of the plava. In the Upameya, a similar karanatva of pratīcehaka in spite of the nominative case being actually used, is thereby suggested.

(144) वक (and मर्थचिन्तन)

Let him $(r\bar{a}j\bar{a})$ plan his undertakings (patiently meditating) like a baka i.e. heron, (like a simha i.e. hon, let him put forth his strength or show his valour; like a wika i.e. a wolf, let him snatch (his prey) like a sasa i.e. hare, let him double in retreat (VII -106).

Upameya prākaraņika rājan,

Upamāna: (1) baka, (11) simha, (11) vika and (iv) saša,

Sādhārana Dharma arthaointana in (1) parākrama in (11) avalumpana in (111, and vinispatāna in (111),

Upamāvācaka, vat in all,

Note —The stanza is an instance of Śrauti Taddhitagā Mālopamā where one and the same Upameya namely rājan is compared with four Upamānas namely baka, sinka, vika and laia, there being an independent common property or Sādhāraņa Dharma in case of each of the Upamānas. Thus in case of baka, the Sadhāraṇa Dharma is arthaeutana, in case of sunha it is parā-krama, in that of vika it is avalumpana and finally in that of sala it is vinispatana. The Upamāvācaka vat makes the Upamā Taddhitagā. As the stanza contains an advice given to the king, the words expressive of the common properties are put in the potential.

Also see Nos. 193, 202 and 215 below

(145) बक (and 東管)

Let him not honour, even by a greeting, heretics, men who follow forbidden occupations (men who live like cats i.e. baidāla-pratikas) rogues (satha), logicians (arguing against the Veda) and bakaviti persons i.e. those who live like herons (IV 30).

(145A) बक (and मत)

(A man) who knows the law should not offer even water to a Brāhmaṇa (who acts like a cat i.e. baidālawatika), nor to a Brāhmaṇa who is bakawatika i.e. who acts like a heron, nor to one who is unacquainted with the Vedas (TV—192).

Upameya: vrite or wata,

Upamāna (baka-) vṛttı or (bak-) vrata (lupta),

Sādhāraņa Dharma ācaraņa (lupta)

Upamávācaka: wa (lupta),

Note:—These stanzas above contain instances of triluptā Upamā where only the Upameya namely vitti or viata is mentioned. Ail other parts of the Upamā namely Upamāna, Sādhāraṇa Dharma and Upamāvācaka are lupta. The compound bakavatika or bakaviti, in this case, is formed according to the Vārtika—'saptamyupamānapūrvapadasya bahavrihiruitarpadalopaica' (mentioned in Kāvyaprakāša of Mammata)

The expression 'baidālvratika' in the two stanzas is also an instance of triluptā Upamā where too only the Upameya namely vrata is mentioned. See No. 148 below

(146) बन्धु (and सम्पूज्यस्व)

If the eldest brother (behaves as an eldest brother (ought to do), he (must be treated) like a mother and like a father, but if he is appesthantte 1 e. if he) behaves in a manner unworthy of an eldest brother, he should yet be honoured (merely) like a bandhu 1.e. kinsman or relative (IX—110).

Upameya: ajyeşthavitti jyeştha,

Upamāna: bandhu,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: sampujyah,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note:—The first line contains a Malopama in the expressions 'matera' & 'pitera' for which see Nos 130 above and 164 below.

(147) भाषा and माझगी with सूद्र see No. 154 below

(148) বিভাজ (and স্বা)

Let him not honour, even by a greeting, heretics, men who follow forbidden occupations baildia-viatika i.e. men who live like cats, (rogues, logicians (arguing against the Veda), and bakavitti persons i.e. those who live like herons) (IV—30)

(A man) who knows the law should not offer even water to a Brāhmaṇa (dvija) who is baidālavratika i.e. who acts like a cat, (nor to a Brāhmaṇa who is bakavratika i.e. who acts like a heron, nor to one who is unacquainted with the Veda, (IV 192)

(A man) who, ever covetous, displays the flag of virtue, (who is) a hypocrite, a deceiver of the people, intent on using injury, (and) a detractor from the merits) of all men, one must know to be a baldatavratika i.e. one who acts like a cat, (IV—195).

Upameyo. vrata,

Upamāna, (bavjāla-) prata (lupta),

Sādhāraņa Dharma, ācaraņa (lupta),

Upamāvācaka. iva (lupta),

Note—Here bidālasya idam is baidālam vratam. These stanzas above contain instances of triluptā Upamā where only the Upameya namely vrata is mentioned. All other parts of the Upamā are lupta. The compound baidālamatika, in this case, is formed according to the Vārtika—'sapiamyupamānapūrvapadasya bahvrīhiruttarapadatopalca', (mentioned in Kāvyaprakāša of Mammaja).

The expressions 'bakavṛttı' in IV-30 and IV-192 respectively are also instances of triluptā Upamā.

See Nos. 145 and 145A above.

(149) स्क्रन्दितमार्थम (रीज) (and मोमल्ब)

If (one man's) bull were to beget a hundred calves on another cows, they would belong to the owner of the cows, in vain (mogha) would the bull have spent his strength i.e. skanditam ārṣabham i.e bipān. Thus also is the seed of him who has no material property in women (akṣatrin) but sow their seed in the soil of others (parakṣatrapravāpin). They benefit the owner of the women (i.e. kṣatrin), but the giver of the seed reaps no advantage (IX—50, 51)

Upameya akşetrinah parakşetrapravāpiņah bijam, Upamāna skanditamārjabham 1.e. bijam, Sādhārana Dharma: moghatvam,

Upamāvācaka, tathā,

Note:—In verses 50-51, the real Upamā is given in 50 d and 51 ab, 50 d however expects a context of 50 a, b, c. In view of this, we may translate. 'In this manner the dropped seed (skandita) belonging to the bull (drṣabha) becomes useless (mogha). In a similar manner, the seed of one who has no wife (akṣetrī), but sows it upon another man's wife becomes useless. Here rṣabha or vṣabha, which is the secondary Upamāna and which corresponds to parakṣetrapravāpin is indirectly mentioned through the taddhita form ārṣabham. In the Upameya-vākya we get two adjectives both in the genitive case (sing.) of the person who is the main Upameya. They are akṣetrin and patakṣetrapravāpin. Corresponding to the latter, we have anyagoṣu in verse 50 a (...e. the Upamāna-vākya). But a similar adjective corresponding to akṣetrin does not seem to have been conceived by the poet in the case of vṛṣabha, the Upamāna.

The antecedent yathā is not used In 51 c the author seems to supply bipnah in view of verse 52. In 51 ab, the existence of the word bipan shows that absertual and paraksetrapravāpnah are gentuve cases and not nominative.

- (150) (शुभ) बीज and उत्तर see No. 47 above
- (151) बीज and बन्द and ईरिख

As a husbandman i.e. vaptā reaps no harvest when he has sown the seed i.e. bīja in barren soil i.e. iriņa, even so the giver of sacrificial food gains no reward if he presents it 'i e. havis') to a man unacquainted with the Rks (III—142).

Upameya, dātr, havis and anrea (vipra),

Upamāna vapir, bīja and īrīņa, Sādhāraņa Dharma na labhate phalam, Upamāvācaka yathā—tathā,

Note: The Upamā contains a triple Upamāna. Here irma and anre correspond with each other, but the former is in the locative case while the latter is in the dative in view of the roots connected with the two namely vap and dā which govern saptami and caturthi respectively. As the Upamā is expressed with the help of two independent sentences, the Sādhāraṇa Dharma is repeated twice. The repetition is exact.

(152) महस्वारिन् (and स्वर्गगमन)

A virtuous write who after the death of her husband constantly remains chaste, reaches heaven, though she have no son, just like brahmeārins i.e. chaste men (lit celibate students, (V 160).

Upameya, sādhvī strī

Upamāna brahmacārmah,

Sādhāraņa Dharma aputratve api svargagamana,

Upamāvācaka: yathā,

Note—There is disagreement in respect of both gender and number between the Upamana brahmatārmah and Upameya sādhvī strī. Here tathā which should have been used with the Upameya is dropped owing to the inversion of the usual order of the Upamāna and the Upameya. For such an omission of tathā see Nos 53, 67, 123 above as well as No 217 below

(153) महाहत्या (and पापायहत्य)

Falsely attributing to oneself high birth (anglam samulkarse), giving mischievous information to the king (regarding a crime) (rājagāmi pailunam), and falsely accusing one's teacher (guroḥ alikamrbandhaḥ), (are offences) equal to brahmahalyā i.e. slaying a Brāhmaṇa (XI—55)

Upameyas samutkarşe anria, rājagāmi paisuna and guroķ alīkanirbandha,

Upamäna: brahmahatyā,

Sādhāraņa Dharma pāpāvahatva (lupta),

Upamāvācaka sama,

Note.—There is disagreement in point of gender between all of the Upameyas samutharse anytam, rājagāmi paisunam & guroḥ alīkam bandha (which are neuter, neuter and masculine respectively) and the Upamāna brakmahatyā (which is feminine). Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna. For a similar Upamā see Nos. 60, 63, 66, 91 and 114 above. The Upamā is Ārthī Vākyagā Dharmaluptā. It is Dharmaluptā as the Dharma or the common property namely pāpāvahatva is not expressed. Rājagāmi paisuna is a false mischievous information about a Brāhmaṇa (as is clear from the Simile), given to, the king and ending in Brāhmaṇa's punishment or death.

(154) माञ्चरणी and नाञ्च and सद

Just as a Sūdra begets on a Brāhmaṇā i.e. Brāhmaṇa female a bāhya i.e. a being excluded (from the Āryan community), even so (a person himself) excluded (b āhya) procreates with (females of) the four castes (cāturvarīye) (sons) more (worthy of being) excluded (than he himself i.e. bāhyatara) (X-30).

Upemeya: bāhya, cărurvarnya and bāhyatara,

Upamāna Sūdra, brāhmaņī and bāhya,

Sādhāraņa Dharma prasūyate,

Upamāvācaka yathā—tathā,

Note —This Upamā contains a triple Upamāna. Here cāturvarnye corresponds to brāhmanyām and stands for a female of any of the four castes. The neuter gender of cāturvarnya is used for want of a suitable feminine form.

(155) बाह्मयाचएडाल (and पतितस्व)

But he who foolishly causes that 'duty' to be performed by wives of other castes, when his wife of equal caste (rajāti) is alive, is declared by the ancients (to be) as (despicable) as a Brāhmaņa-canāāla i.e. a canāāla (sprung from a) Brāhmaņa female from a Sūdra (IX—87).

Upameya yah bhartā,

Upamāna: Brāhmaņacaņdālah,

Sādhāraņa Dharma patitatva (lupta),

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note —This is Śrauti Vākyagā Dharmaluptā Upamā — It is Dharmaluptā because here the Dharma or the common property namely paintaina is not expressed.

(156) सूमि (and सर्वेश्नम)

They declare (false evidence) concerning water (ap), concerning the enjoyment of women (strinām bhoga), and concerning all gems (ratna), produced in water (abja), or consisting of stones (almamaya) (to be) equally (wicked) as a lie concerning bhūmi i.e. land (VIII—100).

Upameyas (anrta) in the cases of āpaḥ, strīnām bhoga and maithuna, abra and asmamaya raima,

Upamāna (ansta) in case of bhūms,

Sădhāraņa Dharma: sarvam hantı (from V-99),

Upamāvācaka: vat,

Note There is disagreement in point of gender between the Upameyas namely strinam bhoga (masculine), mathunam (neuter) and abjesu sarvaimamajesu ratnesu (neuter) and the Upamana bhûms (feminine). There is disagreement in respect of number also between Upamana ratnesu (plural) and the Upameya bhûms (singular). Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamana. For a similar phenomenon see Nos. 60, 63, 66, 91 and 114 above. Really speaking, in this Upama anitam from V 99 is to be supplied. It serves as the real Upameya with the other words in the Locative case. The Sādhārana Dharma is to be supplied similarly from V-99 i.e. sarvam bhūmyanīte hanti

(157) ` भूतक and निर्देश see No. 123 above.

(158) भरस्य (and काहिसन)

If the king did not, without tiring, inflict punishment on those worthy to be punished, the stronger would roast (apakgyan) the weaker like matsyas i.e. fish on a spit (sale), or like fish in water (sale) (VII—20).

Upameya durbala,

Upamāna: matsya,

Sādhāraņa Dharma- pacana or ākumsana,

Upamāvācaka iva,

Note:—Here matsyān is the Upamāna, durbalān the Upameya; and füle apaksyan is intended to be the Sādhārana Dharma. It applies primarily to the Upamāna and only secondarily to the Upameya.

For the reading 'jale matsyanivahimsyuh' both the adjectives balavattarāh and durbalān can be transferred to the Upamāna. In this case, jale becomes only a restrictive attributive of the Upamāna employed for making it suitable as an Upamāna in the present case

(159) मस्त्य i.e. सक्रयटकमस्त्याश्च and जन्य See No. 11 above.

(160) मल and भारत see No. 113 above.

(161) महाहद and लोप्ट

As a lostane cood of earth falling into a mahāhṛdane great ake is quickly dissolved, even so every sinful act is drowned in the threefold Veda (XI--263).

Upameya trurt Veda and duscarita,

Upamāna: mahāhīda and loṣṭa,

Sādhārana Dharma mnāša or majjana,

Upamāvācaka, yathā-tathā,

Note:—This Upama contains a double Upamana. It involves a change of case owing to adoption of different expressions. The accusative and the word prappa is used for the Upamana while the locative having the same sense is used for the Upameya. The Sadnarana Dharma is here expressed in two synonymous words namely unaspate and majate, in the two sentences.

(162) महिची (and जस्पादसस्य प्रश्नामागित्वामान) IX-48

Upameya: anyānganā,

Upamāna mahīsī (belonging to others)

Sādhāraņa Dharma notpādakah prajābhāgī,

Upamāvācaka yathā-tathā,

Note -For the details of the Upamä see No. 9 above.

(163) ਸ਼ਾਰੂ (and वृत्ति)

Towards a sister of one's father and of one's mother and towards one's own elder sister, one must behave as towards mdir i.e. one's mother; (but) the mother is more venerable than they (II—133)

Upameyas pituh bhagini, mātuh bhagini and jyāyasī svasā,

Upamāna, mātr

Sädhärana Dharma vyttimätis įhel,

Upamāvācaka, vat,

Note —As orthogolar governs the locative, the Upameyas put in the locative. Here also many Upameyas are compared.

with one single Upamana. Also see Nos. 60, 63, 66, 91 and 114 above.

(164) मातृ (and वृत्ति)

If the eldest brother (yestha) behaves as an eldest brother (ought to do) (yesthamili), he (must be treated) like mäir i.e. a mother (and like pitr i.e. a father; but if he behaves in a manner unworthy of an eldest brother, he should yet be honoured (merely) like a kinsman or relative i.e. bandhu) (IX--110).

Upameya, syesthavrtti syestha,

Upamāna, māty,

Sādhāraņa Dharma' vitti (lupta),

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note — This is Śrauti Samāsagā Dharmalputā Upamā — It is Dharmaluptā because the Dharma or the common property namely vetta (treatment) is not expressed.

The Upamā in piteva (see No. 130 above) makes the first line an instance of Mālopamā. Sampūyyastu bandhuvat in d contains another Upamā for which see No. 146 above.

(165) सालव and चन्द्र see No 83 above.

(.66) मादत see No. 185 below.

(167) (चर्ममय) कृत (and नाममाध्रधारण)

(As kāṣthamaya hastīn 1. e. an elephant made of wood) as carmamaya mṛga 1.e. a trussed up deer, such is an unlearned Brāhmaṇa; those three have nothing but the names (of their kind) (II—157).

Upameya: anadhiyana трга,

Upamānas: (1) kāṣṭhamaya hastın and (11) carmamaya nirga, Sādhārana Dharma nāma bibhrati,

Upamāvācaka, yathā,

Note This is Srautl Vākyagā Mālopamā. Here anadhiyāna vipra is compared with two Upamānas namely kāṣṭhamaya hastin and carmamaya nuga in respect of 'nāma bibhrati' which is the common property. Instead of tathā the poet uses the word yaica in order to emphasize the Upameya namely the anadhīyāna vipra. The construction is anakoluthic. The poet begins with an Upamā with vipra as the Upameya and hastin and mīga as the Upamānas; but instead of concluding it as an Upamā by usung the word tathā in c he concludes by means of a Dipaka where the prakṛta upra and the aprakṛta hastīn and mṛga are connected with the common property namely nāma bibhratī. It seems that the word to has influenced the choice of the poet in using yaḥ in place of tathā.

(168) मृत and मृत्यु and समृद्युत see No. 22 above.

(169) सुन and श्रञ्

As latravali i.e. enemies do not hurt stån i.e. these (beings mygādīn-Kullūka, when they are) sheltered by (their) fortresses, even so foes (arayali) (can) not injure a king (nipa) who has taken refuge in his fort (VII -73)

Upameya, arı and nypa,

Upamāna fairu and stān i.e. mṛgādīn,

Sädhärana Dharma -na himsanti,

Upamāvāsaka: yathā—tathā,

Note:—This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. The Upamāna etān is in the plural showing the six different kinds of beings mentioned in the last stanza namely mrgagartāfrayāpsarāḥ and plavangamanarāmarāḥ. Here the Sādhāraṇa Dharma is mentioned twice, once with the addition of the preposition upa in the Upamāna and secondly without it in the Upameya.

(170) मृगञ्ज and मृग and अस्क्यात see No. 22 above.

(171) यन्त् and बाजिन

A wise man should strive to restrain his organs which run wild among alluring sensual objects like a yantā i.e. charioteer his vājinah i.e. horses (II—88).

Upameya, vidvān and indriyāņi,

Upamana: yanta and vajinah,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: sarnyams yatnamātis thet,

Upamāvācaka, iza,

Note:—This Upamā also contains a double Upamāna. There is disagreement in respect of gender between the Upamāna sājinah (masculine) and the corresponding Upameya indrivāni (neuter)

(172) वम (and कृति)

Let the king, therefore, like yama not heading his own likings and dislikings, behave exactly like Yama i.e. with yāmyā nyth, supressing his anger and controlling hunself (or lit controlling his senses) (VIII—173).

Upameya: snāmin (rājan),

Upamāna: yama,

Sādhāraņa Dharma yāmyā vṛth,

Upamāvācaka, wa,

Note.—Here yāmyayā vrityā in c constitutes Padamdarśanā which itself, serves as the Sādhārana Dharma of the Upamā expressed in a. The stanza thus becomes an instance of Sankara of Nīdaršanā and Upamā.

(173) यस and प्रियद्वेष्यौ

As yama at the appointed time (pro to kāle) subjects to hisrule both priya and dosya i.e. friend and foe, even so all subjects must be controlled by the king; that is yamavrata or the office in which he resembles Yama (IX—307).

Upameya, rājan and przyadvesyā prajā,

Upamāna yama and priyadvesyau,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, prāpte kāle myamana,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note—This Upamā contains a double Upamāna. There is active construction in the Upamāna-vākya and passive in the Upameya-vākya. So the two sentences become independent. Hence the double mention of the Sādhāraṇa Dharma becomes necessary corresponding to priyadvijyau in the Upamāna-vākya, an adjective priyadvijyāh going with prajāh mut be supplied in the Upameya-vākya. There is disagreement in respect of gender between priyadvijyau (masculine) the Upamāna and prajāh the Upameya.

'pamavratam' in d constitutes Nidarsana, thus making the stanza an instance of Sankara of Upama and Nidarsana.

(174) रिप्तम् and सादित्य and तोय and समुद्र, see No. 28above.

(175) रुकमस्तेव (and पापावएस्व)

Stealing a deposit, or men, a horse and silver, (and) land, diamonds and (other) gems is declared to be equal to rukmastsya i.e. stealing the gold (of a Brāhmaņa) (XI—57).

Upameya: nikşepanaraşvarajatabh ümwajramaninam apaharanam,

Upamāna: rukmasteyam,

Sādhāraņa Dharma pāpāvahaiva (lupta),

Upamāvācaka; sama,

Note —This is Ārthī Samēsagā Dharmaluptā Upamā is Dharmalupta because here the dharma i.e. the common property namely päpävahatva is not expressed.

(176) ਜੀਵ (and ਵਿਜ਼ੀ ਤਲਾਤੰਜ) (IV-24.)

Upameya, myta śarira,

Upamāna, losta,

Sādhavaņa Dharma, kritau utsarjana,

Upamāvācaka, sama,

Note: -For the details of the Upamā see No. 55 above

(177) लोप्ट and महाहद See No. 161 above.

(178) वस्स and आव

As the varyokas i.e. leech, the vatsa i.e. calf and the satpada i e bee take their adya i.e. food little by little, even so must the king draw from his realm moderate annua: taxes (VII-129)

Upameya: rājan and kara,

Upamānas: (i) vatsa and ādya,

- (11) vāryokas and ādya,
- (ni) şafpada and ādya,

Sādhāraņa Dharma alpādana or alpagrahaņa,

Upamāvācaka: yathā-tathā,

Note.—There is double Upamāna in this Mālopamā where the king receiving taxes (karas) is compared with a varyokah (leach), a vatsa (calf) and a sathada (hee) receiving their food (ādya) bit by bit. But the Upamāna-vākya is put in the active construction while the Upameya-vakya is put in the passive. This makes the twice mention of the Sādhāraņa Dharma necessary viz. adonti and grhitavjah. Here adyam is neuter and kara is masculine. Hence disagreement in respect of gender between the two. Different constructions in the two Vakyas gives rise to the irregularity of adyam, the Upamana in the accusative and the kara the Upameya in the nominative There is also corresponding irregu-Farity between väryokovatsasatþadāh and rājhā The source of food of the leech etc. which corresponds to rastra in the Upameyaväkya is not mentioned.

(179) देप्तृ and बीन and ईरिया see No. 151 above.

(180) वरुष (and बन्ध or निम्रह्)

As (a sinner) is seen bound with ropes by Varuna, even so let him punish the wicked, that is his vāruna vrata i.e office in which he resembles Varuna (IX—308).

Upameya: rājan from verse 307,

Upamāna: Varuņa,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, nigraha,

Upamāvācaka· yathā-tathā,

Note—The construction is passive in the Upamāna-vākya and active in the Upameya-vākya. Hence the Sādhāraṇa Dharma is expressed twice with the help of two different words viz. pāśaih baddha (in the Upamana-vākya) and nigrhūjāt (in the Upameya-vākya). For an opposite construction see Nos. 173 above & 185 below. As the verse contains an advice to the king, the word expressive of common property going with the Upameya is put in the potential. Here pāśaih is mentioned in the Upamāna as it is the peculiar weapon of Varuna so that pāśaih baddah corresponds to nigrahah in the Upameya-vākya. In the simile, pāpah is to be supplied in the Upamāna-vākya from c d and the prākara-tājan (from verse 307) is to be supplied in the Upameya-vākya.

(181) बल्मीक and पुश्चिका see No. 134 above

(182) विश्व see Nos. 6 and 7 above.

(183) वाजिन् and यन्तु see No. 171 above.

(184) बाह्य (and बानुसमत)

For the manes attend the invited Brahmanas, follow them (when they walk) like vayu i.e. the wind, and sit near them when they are seated (III—189).

Upameya pitarah, Upamana: väyu,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, anugaechanti,

Upomāvācaka: vai,

Note:—There is disagreement in respect of number between the Upamana võyu (which is singular) and the Upameya pitorah (which is plural).

(185) बाखु i.e. सास्त (and लंबार)

As the Māruta i.e. the Wind moves (everywhere), entering (in the shape of the vital air) all created beings, even so let him penetrate (everywhere, through his spies; that is the mārutam viratam that is the office in which he resembles the Māruta or the Wind (IX—306).

Upameya: prākaraņika rājan,

Upamāna: Māruta,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, pravisya samcāra,

Upamāvācaka: 30thā—tathā,

Note.—There is active construction in the Upamāna vākya and passive in the Upameya-vākya. Hence the mention of the common property twice. As the verse contains an advice given to the king the word pranestaryam, expressive of the common property going with the Upameya, is evidently a potential passive participle. For an exactly opposite construction see No. 180 above. In the Upamāna there is nothing that corresponds to carath, which belongs only to the Upameya and establishes the correspondence between the Upamāna and the Upameya in tarvabhūtapraneia.

māsulam oratam in d contains a Nidaršanā thus making the stanza an instance of Sankara of Upamā and Nidaršanā.

(186) ৰাপ্ত and অন্ত see No. 94 above

(187) बारबा sec No 227 below

(188) बारि and बर see No. 120 above.

Upameya pstr,

Upamāna: vipra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma śrāddhe ašana,

Upamāvācaka: vat,

(191) निष (and उद्या)

A Brāhmana should always dishke homage as if it were mṣa i.e. pioson (and constantly desire (to suffer) scorn as (he would long for) amṛta i.e. nectar) (II—162)

Upameya: sammāna,

Upamāna visa,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: udoņeta,

Upamāvācaka, īva,

Note:—There is disagreement in gender between the Upameya sammāna (masculine) and the Upamāna mṣam (neuter). amrtasyeva cākānkṣet in c contains another independent Upamā for which see No. 13 above.

(192) वीरहत्या (and पापावहत्त्व)

A Brāhmana who, being an Agnihotrin, voluntarily neglects the sacred fires, shall perform a lunar penance for one month, for that (offence) is equal to vîrahatyâ i e the slaughter of a warrior (XI-41).

Upameya, tat i.e. kamakaratah agninamapavedha,

Upamāna: vīrahatyā,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, pāpāvahatva (lupia),

Upamāvācaka: sama,

Note.—There is disagreement in gender between the Upameya tat (neuter) and the Upamana virahatya (feminine).

This is Arthi Samāsagā Dharmaluptā Upamā. Ii is Dharmaluptā because the Dharma i.e. the common property namely pāpāsahatsa is not expressed

But if kingdom he secure, protected by the strength of his arms, it will constantly flourish like a druma i.e. tree which is being (well-)watered (suyamāna) (IX—255).

Upameya: răstra,

Upamāna: (sicyamāna) druma,

Sādhāraņa Dharma : nityam vardhate,

Upamāvātaka: 10a,

Note:—The adjective sicyamāna of the Upamāna druma has its correspondence with the expression bāhubalāsrītam in the Upameya viz. rāstra, where the bāhubalāsrītam is conceived as similar to seka or sprinkling (of the tree). There is disagreement in respect of gender between the Upamāna druma (which is masculine) and the Upameya rāstra (which is neuter)

Upameya, abhvoädanānabhvjita vipra.

Upamāna. Sūdra,

Sădhāraņa Dharma, anabhwādyaiva.

Upamāvēcaka yathā-tathā,

Note: This simile incidentally indicates the position of the Sūdras in the society. The author of Manusmrti, who is considered to be an avowed champion of Brahmanism, is only expected to recall such a simile. Also see Nos. 204, 205 and 206 below

Note:—Here a double Upamana is present. For the details of the Upama see No. 10 above.

(211) समुद्र i.e. सागर and नदीनद see No. 119 above

(212) समुद्र and निम्नम

Whatever be the quaitties of the man (bhartā lit. husband) with whom a woman (strī) is united according to the law, such quaitties even she assumes, like nimnagā i.e. river (united) with samudra i.e. the ocean (IX—22),

Upameya: stri and bharta,

Upamāna, nimnagā and samudra,

Sādhāraņa Dharma· sadyšaguņasampādana,

Upamāvācaka: iva,

Note:- This Upamă contains a double Upamana

(213) समुद्द and सिन्धु

Upameya, krtadandāh mānavāh,

Upamāna: sukytinah,

Sādhāraņa Dharma svorgamāyānti,

Upamāvācaka: yathā,

Note: —Here tathā which should have come with the Upameya is dropped owing to the inversion of the usual order of Upamāna and Upameya. For a similar dropping of tathā see Nos 53, 57, 123 and 152 above.

(219) मुद्देत्र and सुबीव

As subije i.e. good seed, springing up in suksetre i.e. good soil turns out (perfectly) well, even so the son (jātah) of an Āryan by an Āryan woman is samskārārha i e. worthy of all the sacraments (X--69).

Upameya: Arya and Arya,

Upamāna: subija and sukjetra,

Sādhārana Dhorma: samskārārhatva, sampannatva,

Upamāvācaka, yathā-sathā,

Note -The Upamā contains a double Upamāna. Here su in subija and suksetra is employed in order that they might correspond with the Upameyas Ārya and Āryā. One and the same common property is here conspicuous by its absence, but there is a correspondence between the two properties i.e. that of the Upamāna and Upameya (sampadyats and samskāramarhati). The fact is that here the Sādhārana Dharma is not really sādhārana or common; but similar. There is disagreement in case between subijam (accusative) and dryāt (ablative) and also there is disagreement in gender between suksetrs (neuter) and dryāyām (feminine) and subijam (neuter) and dryāt (masculine).

(220) सुनीज and सुदेश see No. 219 above.

(221) द्वरांपान (and पापानहस्त)

Forgetting the Veda, reviling the Vedas, giving false evidence, slaying a friend, eating forbidden food, or (swallowing substances) unfit for food, are six (offences) equal to surapana i.e. drinking Sura or wine (XI—56)

Upameyas: brahmojjhatā, vedanindā, kauja-sākīyam, suhīdvadhah and garhitānādyayoh jagdhih,

Upamāna, surāpānam,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, pāpāvahatva (lupta),

Upamāvācaka: sama,

Note.—Here many Upameyas are compared with a single Upamāna. For a similar comparison see Nos. 60, 63, 66, 91 and 114 above. There is disagreement in respect of gender between the Upameyas brahmojhatā (feminine), vedanindā (feminine), suhrdvadhah (masculine), garhitānādyayoh jagdhih (feminine) and the Upamāna surāpānam (neuter) The Upamāna is Ārthi Samāsagā Dharmaluptā. It is Dharmaluptā because here the Sādhāraņa Dharma or the common property namely pāpāvahatva is not mentioned. This is, however, natural in a work on Dharmašāstra.

(222) स्तेन see No. 92 above.

(223) स्मी and पंग्ड see No. 10 as well as 210 above.

(224) स्तुपा (and वृत्ति)

But when purpose of the appointment to (cohabit with) (niyogārtha) the widow has been attained in accordance with the law, those two shall behave towards each other like (guru i.e. father) and snurā i.e. a daughter-in-law (IX—62)

Upameya; pidhavā,

Upamāna: snuṣā,

Sādhāraņa Dharma, vrtti (i.e. ācaraņa),

Upamāvācaka; vat,

Note.—The expression 'gurunat', in a contains another Upamana which is a complement of this Upama for which see No. 68 above.

(225) इंस (and तमत)

Let him wed a female free from bodily defects, who has an agreeable name, the (graceful) gait of a harhra i.e. swan (or of vdrana i.e. elephant), a moderate (quantity of) hair on the body and on the head, small teeth, and soft limbs (III—10).

Upameya: strl,

Upamāna: (1) harhsa,

(ii) vāraņa,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: gamana,

Upamāvāsaka: 10a (lupta),

Note:—The Upamā is Śrautī Samāsagā Vādiluptā or Vācakaluptā. It is Vādiluptā because the Upamāvācaka wa is not expressed owing to the formation of the compound hamsa-odrapagām:nlm.

The vāraņagāminīm part of the compound contains another Upamā where the strî is compared to vāraṇa în point of gamana or gait. This makes the compound an instance of Mālopamā where a strī is compared with a hamsa and a vāraṇa in point of graceful gait.

(226) इतिस् and कृष्णवस्मेन् see No. 3 above.

(227) इस्तिन् i.e. बार्ण (and गमल) III-10

Upameya: stri,

Upamāna: vāraņa,

Sādhāraņa Dharma: gamana,

Upamāvācaka: iva (lupta),

Note:-For the details of the Upama see No. 225 above.

(228) (काष्ठमय) इस्तिम् (and नामसात्रधार्या) II -157.

Upameya: anadhiyāna vipra, Upamāna: kāṣṭhamaya hastın,

Sādhārana Dharma: nāma bibhrati,

Upamāvācaka: yathā,

Note: For the details of the Upama see No. 167 above.

OTHER ALANKĀRAS

(A) Alańkāras based on Aupamya.

(i) Atısayoktı

He who leaves his body (deha) (let it by necessity) as a wrkya i.e. tree (that is torn from) the nadikūla i.e. river-bank, or (freely) like a šakuni i.e. bird (that quits a wrksa i.e. tree) is freed from the dreadful (kyechra) grāha i.e. shark (VI--78)

Upameya: samsārakaşta, Upamāna grāha,

Note —Here krechra grāha stands for excessive troubles in the mundane existence or in this life i.e. In mytyuloka i.e. samsārakasta. As there is nigirya adhyavatāna or swallowing of the Upameya namely samsārakasta by the Upamāna grāha, this is an instance of the figure Attisyokti of the first kind which is defined by Mammata as follows:—

'nigiryādhyavasānam tu prakrtasya parena yat' Also see No. 57 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(2) Apahnuti

Even an infant king must not be despised, (from an idea) that he is a (mere) mortal for he is a great devată i.e. deity in human form (nararūpa) (VII-8).

Upameya: nara, Upamāna: devatā,

Note:—Here the naratoa of the bhūmpa or the king is denied (nisiddha) and the devatātva is established (sthāpita). Hence the figure is Apahnuti which is defined by Mammata as 'prakrtam yannisiddhyānyat sthāpyats sa tvapahnutiķ'

(3) Dipakam

(a) श्रन्त्य and भूमें

He who possesses faith, may receive subhā i.e. pure vidyā i.e. learning even from an avara namely a man of a lower caste or class, the para i.e. highest Dharma i.e. law even from an antya namely the lowest and striraina i.e. an excellent woman even from a duykula namely a base family (II—238).

Upameya: śubhā vidyā and avara,

Upamānas (i) para Dharma and aniya

(ii) strîraina and duşkula,

Note This is an example of the figure Dīpaka where two pairs of Upamānas are offered for a single pair of the Upameya. Here one common property namely ādadīta only once mentioned is connected with the prakta (Upameya) viz, šubhā vidyā and avara and the aprakṛtas (Upamānas) namely para Dharma and antya as well as strīratna and duṣkula. Hence this is Dīpakam of the first kind defined by Mammaṭa as 'sakṛduṛttistu dharmasya prakṛtāprakṛtātmanām'

(b) जमृत and विव

Even from visa i.e poison, ampta i.e. nectar can be taken even from a bāla i.e. a child, subhāsitam. e good advice, even from an amitra i.e. an enemy, (a lesson in sadoptia i.e. good conduct and even from amadhya i.e. an impure substance, kāñaana i.e. gold i.e. gold (may be accepted) (II—239).

Upameya, sadortta and amitra,

Upamānas: (i) amsta and vija,

(ii) subhāsita and bāla,

(iii) kāñcana and amedhya,

Note:—This verse occurs in the chapter dealing with the duties of a celibate student. Hence sadvitta that can be taken even from an anitra appears to be prakita i.e. the Upameya. It is connected with three pairs of aprakitas i.e. the Upamenas namely amita and visa, subhāsita and bāla as well as kāñcana and amedhya. The common property is grāhyataa expressed only once with the grāhyam. Hence here also the figure is Dīpaka.

- (c) समेब्द and काञ्चन see No. (b) above.
- (d) काञ्चन and भमेध्य

Upameya: sadvitta and amitra,

Upamāna: kātīcana and amedhya,

Note:—This is a Dipaka for the details of which see No. (b) above.

(c) दुष्कुल 2nd स्त्रीरतन

Upameya: lubhā mdyā and avara,

Upamāna: strīratna and duskula,

Note: This is also a Dipaka for the details of which see No. (a) above.

(f) धर्म and मन्ख see No. (a) above.

(g) धर्म, शिल्प, शौच, सुमावित and स्त्रीरस्न

Striratnām i.e. excellent wives, vidyā i.e. learning (the knowledge of) the Dharma i.e. Law, saucam i.e. (rules of) purity, subhāṣitam i.e. good advice and silpām i.e. various arts may be acquired from anybody (II—240)

Upameya: vidyā

Upamānas (1) Dharma, (11) šīlpa, (14) šauca, (14) subhāṣitam and (4) strīratnām

Note:—Here one common property namely sarvatah samādeyām is connected with the prakrta, the vidyā (which is thus the Upameya) and the aprakrta things namely Dharma, hilpa, taura, subhāṣitam and strirainām (which thus serve as Upamānas). Hence the figure in the verse is Dipaka where there is sakrd vitts of the dharma i.e. the common property between the prakrta and many aprakrta things.

- (h) बाल and सुवादित see No. (b) above
- (i) किंप and अपन see No. (b) above
- (j) सुमानित and नात

Upameya: sadortta and amitra

Upamāna: subhāsita and bāla

Note -This is a Dipaka for the details of which see No.

(b) above.

(k) स्त्रीरल and दुव्कल see No. (a) above.

(4) Dystânta

(a) नामग्रहस अ क्तक्फल 200 वारि

To whatever order (āsrama) he may be attached, let him, though blemished (dūnta) (by a want of the external marks), fulfil his duty (dharma), equal-minded towards all creatures, (for) the external mark of lunga (of the order) is not the cause of (the acquisition of) merit (dharma). Though the fruit of the kataka tree i.e. Katakaphala (the clearing-nut) makes water clear, yet the (latter) i.e. nāri does not become lumpid in consequences of nāmagrahma i.e. mention of the (fruit's) name (VI—66-67).

Upameya: linga and dharma

Upamāna. nāmagrahaņa of Katakaphala and vāri,

Note:—The Upameya-vākya is in verse 66 and the Upamāna vakya in verse 67. The resemblance is as follows:

Mere external mark (linga) of a creed or a sect or an order does not lead to the generation of merit (dharma) just as the mere mention i.e nămagrahana of a katakaphala (clearing-nut) does not purify water. Here the assumption of a linga corresponds to the nămagrahana and the performance of duties of the dirama etc. corresponds to the Katakaphala. The figure is Drstânta which is defined by Marmmata as 'drstântah punarelesam sarveşâm pratibiihbanam'.

(b) भरमम्

As tradgal i.e. fire of dry grass is (unable to consume the offerings and is quickly) extinguished; even so (is it with) an unlearned Brahmana; sacrificial food (havya) must not be given to him, never is (it offered in (bhasman) i.e. ashes (III—168).

Upameya, anadhlyana Brahmana,

Upamāna: bhasman,

Note:--Here also we have Dṛṣtānta in cd, where the anadhiyāna Brāhmaṇa is compared with bhasman and the gift of a havya to him is compared with havana in bhasma, which proves to be of no use to one who offers it.

Also see No. 97 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(c) दिनेर and बस्विया हस्त

Food sacred to the manes (kanya) or to the gods (hanya) must be given to a man distinguished by sacred knowledge (jfidnetkpjta); for hands i.e. hasta sneared (digdha) with blood (aijk), cannot be cleaned with blood i.e. rudhira (II—192).

Upamāna; rudhīra and asīkdīgāha hasta,

Note.—This is Vaidharmyena Drejanta. Here ignorant vipra is compared with rudhira or blood and the dātā or offerer to aspkdigdha hasta or blood-stained hand. Both namely the dātā and aspkdigdha hasta are, by themselves, impure. For purifying them, kauya-offerings given to an ignorant Brahmin and rudhira can evidently be of an avail. Hence the conclusion in a-b that the kauya or havya ought to be given to a learned Brahmin alone.

- (d) बारि and नामप्रवृक्ष of कतक्षक see No. (a) above.
- (c) अस्किए इस्त and इपिर see No. (c) above

(5) Nidaršanā

(a) অনি (and ল্বন)

(If) he (i.e the king) is ardent in wrath against criminals and endowed with brilliant evergy and destroys wicked vassals, then his viatam is said to be ágneyam i.e. his character is said to resemble that of Fire (IX—310).

Upameya · prākaromka nepa,

Upamāna; agni

Note.—Here the king's vratam is said to agneyam. As one cannot follow the vrata of another, we have to understand an Upamā here, where the king is compared to Agni and his vrata similar to that of Agni. Hence the figure is Pada-Nidarśanā. Nidarśanā is defined by Mammata as 'abhavan vastusambandhaḥ upamāpankalpakaḥ'.

N.P. Also see No. 2 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(b) कर्ल (and हत)

As daily or the Sun during eight months (unperceptibly) draws up the water i.e. toys with his rays even so let him gradually draw his taxes from his kingdom; for that is arkavratam namely the office in which he resembles the son or Arka (IX—305).

Upameya, prākaraņika nypa,

Upamāna: arka,

Note:—Here the king or nypa is advised to follow arkavrata. The connection between the two seems impossible as one cannot follow the viata of another. In order to account for this we have to suppose arkavratam as arkavratasadriam viatam. This leads to Upamā. Hence the figure is Nidaršanā which is defined by Mammata as 'abhavan vastusambandhah upamāparskaipakah'

Also see No. 28 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(c) 対理 (and 項)

As Indra sends copious rain during four months of the Rainy Season, even so let the king, taking upon himself the office of Indra 1.e indravrata, shower benefits on his kingdom (IX—304).

Upameya: prākaraņiķa nipa,

Upamāna: Indra

Note: Here also the king is said to accept the vrata of Indra. This is impossible. Hence we are to understand an Upamā where the king and his trata is compared to Indra and his trata. Hence the figure is Nidaršanā.

Also see No. 36 in the Similes in Chapter 3

(d) স্বন্ধ (and দ্রু)

He is a king taking upon himself the viata i.e. office of Candra i.e. the Moon, whose (appearance) his subjects (greet with as great joy) as men fee, on seeing the full moon (IX-309).

Upameya: nṛpa

Upamāna: candra

Note —A nipa cannot be really candravratika. His viata can at best be similar to that of candra. Thus there is paryavasāna in Upamā of nipa with candra. Hence the figure is again Nidar-śanā.

Also see No. 83 in the Similes, in Chapter 9.

(e) quit (and m)

As dhard i.e. the earth supports all created beings equally, thus (a king) who supports all his subjects, (takes upon himself) the parthwam violan i.e. the office of Pythvi i.e. the Earth (IX—311).

Upameya: rājan Upamāna: pythol.

Note:—Here also as the King is asked to observe the vrata of pṛthvi: As one cannot really hold the vrata of another, this leads to Upamā and hence the figure is Nidaršanā where pārthwam vratam bibhrat is understood as pṛthvivratasya sadṛšam vratam bibhrat.

Also see No. 112 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(f) प्लव (and) जत

One who after accepting money from the wicked offers it to the good, makes himself a plana i.e. boat and saves both i.e. the wicked and the good (XI—19)

Upameya: ātman, Upamāna: plava.

Note:—Here the person is said to convert himself into a plana i.e. boat i.e. the saviour namely the cause of santarana in case of the wicked person whose wealth or money he has taken and has offered it to the good. As it is not possible to actually convert oneself into a plana, the figure here is a Nidarsana ending in the comparison of atman with a plana.

(g) 有有 (and ng)

That Brahmana, who with downcast look, of a cruel disposition is solely intent upon attaining his own ends, dishonest and falsely gentle, is a bakavratacara i.e. one who observes the vow of a baka i.e. heron

Those V.pras or Brahmanas who are bakavratinah i.e. who act like herons and those who display the characteristics of cats, fall in consequence of that wicked mode of acting into (the hell) called Andhatamisra (IV—196-197).

Upameya: dvija or vipra,

Upamāna: baka.

Note.—Here the vipra or dvija is said to be a follower of the vrata of baka. As one cannot really follow the vrata of another, there is abhavan (impossible) vastusambandha and hence this constitutes a Nidarsana, which ends in the comparison of Baka and the Vipra.

Asio see Nos. 145 and 145 A in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(h) मारुत (and अत)

As the Māruta i.e. the Wind moves (everywhere) entering (in the shape of the vital air) all created beings, even so let him penetrate (everywhere) through his spies. That is mārutam vratam i.e. the office in which he resembles the Māruta or the Wind (IX—306).

Upameya: prākaraņika nīpa oz rājan,

Upamāna: māruta,

Note.—Here also the viata of the king is said to be māruta. As it can be at best mārutasadrša, the expression mārutam viatam contains a Nidaršanā which is upamāparukalpaka i.e. ending in the comparison of Māruta and the nipa.

N.P. Also see No. 185 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(i) मार्जार (and लिहा)

Those Brāhmaņas or Vipras who observe the vow of a heron and those who are marjāralviginah i.e. who disaplay characteristics of cats, fall in consequence of that wicked mode of acting into (the hell) called Andhatamisra (IV—197).

Upameya: vipra, Ubamāna: mārjāra,

Note:—Here also vipras are styled as displaying the characteristics of cats. This is not possible. Hence we have to understand a simile here and say that the characteristics displayed by the vipras are similar to those of the mārjāra. Hence this is a Nidar-sanā ending in the comparison of vipras with mārjāras.

N.P. Also see No. 148 in the Similes in chapter 3.

(j) यम (and मृति)

Let the prince or the king, therefore, like Yama not heading his own likings and dislikings adopt the behaviour of Yama i.e. yāmyā vṛṭṭi, suppressing his anger and controlling himself. (VIII— 173).

Upamaya: rājan, Upamāna: Yama,

Note:—Here also the king is asked to assume yamya vytti. As this not possible unless we understand yamya vytti as yamasadyid vytti, the figure here is Nidarsana ending in the comparison of the king with Yama.

Also see No. 172 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(k) प्य (and हत)

As Yama at the appointed time subjects to his rule both namely the friends and foes (priyadveyau), even so all subjects must be controlled by the king; that is (his) yamavrata i.e. office in which he resembles Yama (IX—307).

Upameya: rājan, Upamāna: Yama,

Note:—Here the viata of the king which cannot be identical with yamaviata, is said to be so. This can be intelligible only on understanding similarity in the two viatas and thus leading to the comparison of the rajan and Yama. Hence the figure is Nidarsanā.

Also see No. 173 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(1) वरुष (and मत)

As (a sinner) is seen bound with ropes by Varuna, even ad let him punish the wicked, that is (his) varunam viratam i.e. the office in which he resembles Varuna (IX-308).

Upameya: rājan from verse 307,

Upamāna: Varuņa

Note:—Here also the vrata of the king is said to be vāruņa. It can be varuņavratasadria. Hence the expression vāruņam vratam ends in Upamā of the king and Varuņa. Evidently the figure is Nidarianā.

Also see No. 180 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

(6) Rūpaka

As a fire in one moment consumes with its bright lustre, the fuel that has been placed, on it, even so he who knows the Veda destroys all guilt by jhānāgni i.e. the fire of knowledge (XI—246).

Upameya: jāānam,

Upamāna: agni

Note:—Here the jilāna or knowledge is identified with agni i.e. fire as it burns or totally destroys all sins. As the abhada between jilāna and agni is intended, the figure is Rūpaka which is defined by Mammata as 'tadrūpakam abhado ya upamānopameyayok'.

N. P .- Also see No. 6 in the Similes in Chapter 3.

B. Alankaras Independent of Aupamya

1. Kāvyalinga

One should not sit in a lonely place with one's mother, sister or daughter; the group of senses is powerful, and drag away i.e. master (even) a learned man (II—215).

Note:—Here ed convey the balavativa of the indrivas which is really the cause of the advice contained in ab namely a person should not sit with a mother etc., in a lonely place. The cause is not expressed with the help of the instrumental or ablative case as usual; but poetically making the whole sentence serve as a cause. Hence the figure is Kāvyalinga of the vākyaga variety. Kāvyalinga (poetical cause) is defined by Mammaṭa as 'kāvyalingam hetorvākyapadārthatā'.

2. Sāra:

Of created beings (bhātāni) the most excellent are said to be those that are animated (prānināh); of the animated, those which subsist by intelligence (buddhijīvināh); of the intelligent, mankind or men (nārāh); and of men the Brāhmaņas;

Of Brāhmaṇas, those learned (vidvāmsah) (in the Veda), of the learned, those who recognises (the necessity and the manner of performing the prescribed duties) (kṛtabuddhayaḥ); of those who possess this knowledge, those who perform them (kartāraḥ); and of the performers, those who know the Brahman (brahmavedinaḥ) (1-96-97).

Note:—Here the Alankāra is Sāra as there is attarottaramutkarṣaḥ or the ascending scale of bhūtas, prāṇins, buddhijīvins, brāhmaṇas, vidvāns, kṛtabuddhis, kartṛs and brahmavedins; subsequent being higher than the previous and ending in brahmavedins which is the highest limit (parā avadhiḥ) in point of excellence. Sāra is defined by Mammaṭa as 'uttarottaramutkarṣaḥ bhavetsāraḥ parāvadhiḥ'.
